Burglars ram car

Policeman Gary Brown's car was towed away Sunday morning after it was rammed by burglars fleeing from McConnell's Magnavox Home Entertainment Center at Kingsway Plaza Mall. The burglars were later caught in Poplar Bluff. This picture was taken through the hole in the front door broken by the thieves to get into the store.

Nixon hurt by a few says Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President - designate Gerald Ford said today that it was tragic "that the stupid illegal acts of a handful of people" had discredited the Nixon administration.

Ford told a Senate committee examining his qualifications to become vice president that he thought President Nixon could recover from Watergate and finish his second term with a good record.

"I think he can," Ford said.

Ford was closely questioned about his relationship with a former Washington lobbyist, but as he neared the end of his second day as a witness, the senators concentrated more on his views of presidential leadership.

Ford was asked what personal characteristics he thought a president needed. "He has to be a person of great truthfulness and the people have to believe he is truthful," Ford said.

He also said a President must lead by personal example, exhibiting high moral and ethical standards.

He praised Nixon for "a superb job" in foreign affairs, but conceded that the Watergate affair had seriously damaged the President domestically.

Ford said he felt Nixon had nothing to do with the planning and execution of the break-in of Democratic headquarters that sparked the Watergate investigation, but that the President had an immediate need to clarify questions relating to it.

The lobbyist, Robert N. Winter-berger, has written a book which he calls "an insider's view of corruption in Washington." It portrays the author as a close associate of Ford, the House Republican leader.

Ford denied all allegations of wrongdoing in his relations with Winter-berger. At the opening session of his confirmation hearings last week he said he was "duped" by Winter-berger, who had been introduced to him by close friends from Michigan.

Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., chairman of the Senate Rules Committee, asked Ford about his visit to a New York doctor, Arnold Hutschnecker, which was arranged by Winterberger.

Ford said he finally paid one brief visit to Dr. Hutschnecker "in order to get rid of Mr. Winter-berger's persistent request."

"If you knew Mr. Winter-berger, I think you would understand how I finally decided to see the doctor," Ford said.

He said he merely had a conversation with Dr. Hutschnecker about the role of leadership in the American political system.

Ford said Winter-berger brought several cases he was interested in to Ford's attention, but in only one instance did Ford or his staff perform the service requested.

The was to assist a prominent Dutch medical expert to remain in the United States, and, he said, he was primarily persuaded to do so by the recommendations of a number of prominent U.S. doctors.

Ford devoted several minutes to a detailed denial of any connection with the award of a contract for furnishing a federal building in Chicago to a Grand Rapids, Mich., firm.

The committee had before it copies of newspaper stories indicating a link between the contract and Ford's assistance in getting a government job for the official who awarded it.

Much of the questioning by the committee dealt with Ford's qualifications to be President, not just vice president. Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., gave him a chance to expand on a trip to China he made last year with the late Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., then the House Democratic leader.

TV sets not recovered

3 held for burglary

Three East St. Louis, Ill. men were being held in city jail today for the Sunday morning burglary of McConnell's Magnavox Home Entertainment Center in Kingsway Plaza Mall.

The three were identified as Lawrence Hester, 21, James Charles Madison, 20, and Carl Ervin Williams, 20.

Police said the three backed their car up to the front entrance of the store at 6 a.m. Sunday, broke out the front door and began loading television sets into the car.

The burglar alarm was triggered, police said. But before any squad cars arrived, two policemen, going home after their shift, spotted the burglary in progress.

Officer Gary Brown pulled his car in front of the burglar's car.

Brown leaped out of his car and fired one shot, striking the top of the getaway car.

The other officer, Joe Sebourn, was unable to get off a shot.

Two 19- inch television sets were taken but not recovered, police said. They were valued at $479 and $499. Police said the burglars apparently dumped them somewhere on the way to Poplar Bluff.

The three suspects were arrested at 9 a.m. by Poplar Bluff police.

Police said Hester, Madison and Williams would be turned over to New Madrid County authorities today.

Other arrests announced today include Louis Danny Davis, 24, of 333 Compress Road for careless and imprudent driving; Danny Joe Arwood, 25, of Morley, assault and battery; Bobby Long, 38, of Sikeston, public intoxication and peace disturbance; Sonny Copeland, 26, 506 W. Gladys, careless and imprudent driving; and Larry Ray Marcus, 28, Jon Don Acres, destroying private property and trespassing.

Doniphan girl dies in wreck

A Doniphan girl was killed and 15 persons were injured in nine area traffic accidents over the weekend, the highway patrol announced today.

Donna Hatfield, 16, of Doniphan was fatally injured at 8:30 p.m. Saturday on Highway 160 eight miles west of Doniphan when the driver of the car in which she was riding lost control of the vehicle which ran off the road at a high rate of speed and overturned in a ditch.

The body was taken to Edwards Funeral Home in Doniphan.

Injured in the accident were the driver, Delbert Haywood, 16, of Doniphan, sprained left wrist; Phillip O'Neill, 15, of Fairdealing, scratches; and Sarah Hatfield, 15, of Doniphan cuts and a sprained left arm. All were taken to Ripley County Memorial Hospital in Doniphan.

Stephen Secoy, 18, of East Prairie received minor head cuts in a two- car accident at 9:20 p.m. Saturday on Highway 62 in Miner.

The accident occurred when the Secoy auto, in the process of passing several cars, struck the left side of an eastbound car driven by Leslie Dubose, 26, of St. Louis, who was attempting to make a left turn.

Secoy was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

A one- car accident four miles east of Wyatt on Highway 60 at 2:20 p.m. Saturday resulted in minor injuries to one person.

The patrol said David Hines, 26, of Mound City, Ill., driving at a high rate of speed, lost control of his car which ran off the road and overturned.

A passenger, Ruby Starks, 30, of Cairo, Ill., received injuries to her back and right leg and was taken to PADCO Community Hospital in Cario.

Clifford Flippo, 28, of Sikeston received serious injuries at 10:35 p.m. Saturday on Highway 114 four miles west of Sikeston when his auto, traveling at an excessive rate of speed, ran off the road and struck a tree. Flippo was thrown from the vehicle.

He received broken ribs, cuts and a possible concussion and was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Nellie Ponder, 46, of East Prairie received a back injury at 10:45 a.m. Saturday on Highway 80 in East Prairie when her car ran off the road and struck a utility pole.

She was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Two persons were seriously injured in a one- car accident at 6:15 p.m. Saturday on Route EE five miles west of Marston.

The accident occurred when a car driven by Mary Counts, 29, of Matthews ran off the road at a high rate of speed and struck an embankment.

Mrs. Counts suffered a broken kneecap and her daughter, Mamie Counts, 14, received a serious head cut and a possible concussion. Both were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

David Holley, 17, of Portageville sustained cuts on the forehead at 9:45 a.m. Saturday on Route EE five miles west of Marston when he lost control of his car which ran off the road and overturned.

He was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Two persons were slightly injured at 12:30 p.m. Sunday on Highway 61 two miles north of Steele when a car driven by Edward Outlaw, 52, of Chicago, Ill., rammed into the back of a car driven by Patsy Tingley, 35, of Paris, Ill. The patrol said the Tingley auto had stopped in traffic which had been halted by a previous accident.

Mrs. Tingley received a back injury and Outlaw suffered a cut lip. Both were

McDonald's grand opening

McDonald's Restaurant conducted official grand opening ceremonies at its East Malone Avenue site Saturday with treats for the kids from Ronald McDonald himself. The ribbon- cutting ceremony was unusual in that the ribbon was made from 100 new one- dollar bills taped end to end. The money was given to Mayor Frank Ferrell to be donated to his favorite charity, the Sikeston United Way. From left are: Jerry D. Davis of Cape Girardeau, owner; Dick Drams of St. Louis, advertising director; Mike Klack of St. Louis, district representative; Don Agnew, Chamber of Commerce president; Ronald McDonald; Mayor Ferrell; Bob Matthews, Chamber of Commerce director; Dick Eshelen of St. Louis, McDonald's representative; Ira Shuffit and Ted Elliot, owners of the restaurant property; Bill Waltrip; Ruth Ann Springs, Chamber of Commerce secretary; Jim Nickell, supervisor of Cape Girardeau and Sikeston McDonald's restaurants; and John Childress, manager of the Sikeston restaurant.

Ambulance law explained by development specialist

"Citizens are more interested, excited, informed and misinformed about ambulance service since the new state ambulance law was passed than they ever were before," says Philip Kelley, area community development specialist for the Delta Center in Portageville.

Senate Bill 57, passed by the 77th General Assembly, is the latest of a series of federal and state laws affecting emergency medical services in the Bootheel, Kelley says, and as a result of the bill, funeral home directors have been forced to review the service they were providing.

"The result of this review seems to be a unanimous decision that the requirements of this new licensing law will make it so expensive to provide ambulance service that they cannot continue in this business," he added in a news release.

There are several reasons why this is true, according to Kelley. In many cases ambulance service has been provided at a financial loss to the funeral home and under the new licensing law, the ambulance vehicle required will be different from vehicles operated by funeral homes.

An additional vehicle will be required, and the additional vehicle cannot be used for other normal business purposes of the funeral home. Also the vehicle will also be required to carry a considerable supply of emergency medical equipment.

"Statistics indicate that ambulances average one emergency trip per 24-hour day for each 10,000 people," says Kelley, "and if this statistic is anywhere near accurate, it is not likely that many funeral homes average more than one call per day and most will make considerably less."

The low frequency of calls makes it impossible to pay for the service out of revenue generated by emergency calls, especially when the Bill 57 also makes new requirements for keeping records and brings previous laws into effect which will also increase costs, he added.

A quick review of the laws affecting ambulance service show that governmental units such as counties, cities, towns and villages may provide ambulance service. Kelley said separate ambulance districts may be formed crossing city or county lines, health centers may contract for ambulance service.

Also, county hospitals, special hospital districts and fire protection districts may provide ambulance services.

In addition to various governmental units, individuals and business firms, such as funeral homes, may provide ambulance service. None of the alternative methods listed previously are mandatory, Kelley said, and they do not require that ambulance service be provided.

"Senate Bill 57 is the first law placing requirements on any private individual, existing business and unit of government that is providing or wants to provide ambulance service to the citizens of Missouri," he said.

Beginning July 1, 1974, Bill 57 will require all ambulance vehicles to be licensed. Attendants riding and driving the ambulances also must be licensed. Like most licensing laws, certain standards must be met to be eligible to obtain a license, Kelley concluded.

Eagleton says the President might resign

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., said he believes President Richard M. Nixon may reach the conclusion that his resignation would be best for the United States.

Eagleton said here Sunday he believed Nixon will resign, in spite of his statements to the contrary, if he concludes he can no longer govern the nation.

Eagleton emphasized, however, that he was not calling for the president's resignation, as several others in Congress have done.

Council meeting will be tonight

The City Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the City Administrative Building.

On the agenda are a proposed rate hike for See-Mor Cable Tv, applications for liquor licenses, the Scott County Court landfill proposal and the Chamber of Commerce office building site.

Man treated for gunshot wound

Robert Lee Williams of St. Louis was treated at Missouri Delta Community Hospital Saturday night for an apparently accidental gunshot wound, according to police.

Williams told police he had just finished cleaning his pistol at a relative's home on Dixie Street and had put the gun in his pocket when it discharged.

Police said the bullet hit him in the thigh. The gun was reported to be a .25-caliber automatic pistol.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Men of note are not always in tune with things.

We are saddened by the death of our old houseman, who looked after my mother and father when they got old, Miller Randolph. He died at the age of 94. Of course, in the last few years he had been unable to do anything but he was a good worker and, of course, he was like most of the colored folks, whatever belonged to the white folks also belonged to him and whenever I needed anything that I thought we had he would tell me that he had it at his house and when I was ready for it he would bring it home. We see where he is going to be buried in Sunset Memorial Cemetery with Dotson Funeral Home in charge of arrangements. We will miss Miller, we have missed him the last few years, but he was a good man while he was able to go.

VETERANS BENEFIT FROM SPACE

Chalk up another down-to- earth benefit from space.

Remember the fire that swept the top floor of the Military Personnel Records Center in St. Louis last July? Millions of the fire- and water- damaged records, which previously would have been unsalvagable, are being restored in a space chamber once used in the Mercury and Gemini missions.

The soggy records are trucked in m the Center to McDonnell Douglas Corp. in light, open milk- carton cases. Each case holds about 200 records and 2,000 cases fit at one time into the 14-foot space chamber.

After the chamber is sealed, the drying process begins with a hot- to - cold cycle in which the records are heated to 140 degrees with warm, dry air, then frozen while the space chamber pressure is gradually lowered to 0.088 pounds per square inch (normal air pressure is 15 psi).

The frozen water molecules are squeezed from the documents by the pressure drop and vented from the chamber. A drying cycle takes from four to six minutes and complete drying requires about five days.

It's a small thing for mankind, but of tremendous importance to veterans or their families in seeking to establish eligibility for various government benefits.

NOBODY LIKES TO BE SECOND-BEST, BUT WE'RE GETTING THERE ALL TOO FAST

The United States used to make 76% of the world's automobiles. Now it's 33%.

We produced 47% of the world's steel; now 19%.

Following World War II we built most of the world's merchant ships. Now only 2%.

From first to third as builder of machine tools.

40% of Americans walk in imported shoes.

Whose fault? It's everyone's fault who wants something for nothing or takes something he doesn't earn. That is what is causing exorbitant prices, shoddy quality, disgusted customers. America was built by hard work, with everyone carrying his share. We'd better get back to it fast, while there's still time.

HOW TO RESTORE CONFIDENCE

The tapes and documents President Nixon reluctantly agreed to turn over to Judge John Sirica relate only to nine conversations with a possible bearing on the Watergate cover-up. Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox's staff had been digging into other matters — illegal campaign contributions, the ITT case, political espionage, activities of White House "plumbers" — for which documents in the White House's possession are needed. The administration has given no sign that it intends to make these materials available.

The "compromise" the White House proposed to Cox, and which he rejected, would have required Cox to forego invoking "the judicial process further to compel production of recordings, notes or memoranda regarding private presidential conversations." If Cox had gone along with the deal, he would have been given access to such documentation only if the White House voluntarily disclosed it.

This was unacceptable to Cox, but it was acceptable to Henry Petersen, the Justice Department's criminal division chief, who replaced Cox after Cox's office was abolished. Petersen said immediately after he took over from Cox that the proposed compromise and the restrictions laid down by the White House were O.K. with him. If the administration hadn't responded to public pressure and agreed to surrender the Watergate tapes and documents, Petersen would have done nothing to enforce Judge Sirica's order to obtain them.

How eager will Petersen be to compel the White House to disclose other documents sought by Cox? His willingness to accept the White House compromise makes it impossible for the public to have confidence in his ability to stand up to the White House and conduct a thorough, independent probe.

The record of the Justice Department on Watergate has been uninspiring. The prosecution of the first seven Watergate defendants caused Judge Sirica to complain at the trial about the government's failure to ask relevant questions. The judge declared at one point, "I have not been satisfied that all of the pertinent facts that might be available" were disclosed.

The Ervin committee hearings brought out that Petersen bowed to White House pressure and permitted Maurice Stans to avoid an appearance before the grand jury. Petersen also obeyed a White House order against allowing the grand jury to learn about the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. The Justice Department knew about the burglary two weeks before it informed the judge at Ellsberg's Pentagon Papers trial.

Petersen was miffed when the office of special prosecutor was established. He told the Ervin committee in August, "I resent the appointment of a special prosecutor. Damn it, I think it is a reflection on me and the Department of Justice. We would have broken that case wide open ... That case was snatched out from under us when we had it 90 per cent complete."

Petersen's hurt pride seems to have blinded him to the obvious fact that no one can have confidence in an investigation of the administration by an agency controlled by the administration. Elliot Richardson, William Ruckelshaus, the Senate Republican leadership and others have recognized that and called for re-establishing the office of special prosecutor.

The sooner this is done the sooner confidence will be restored in the administration of justice.

RAIL ROADBEDS ARE IN SAD, SAD SHAPE

So bad is the deterioration of tracks and roadbeds on the nation's railroads that the ride quality of several Amtrak routes has declined to the point where "almost the only people who will ride trains are pass holders, railroad enthusiasts and those with an absolute mental or physical aversion toward air travel."

And presumably one other category — members of the National Association of Railroad Passengers whose chairman, Anthony Haswell, made the above charge at NARP's annual meeting a few weeks ago.

He cited a number of important routes — Chicago - Louisville, Chicago - New Orleans, Chicago - Denver — that are plagued by stretches with "slow orders" limiting trains to speeds of 30 miles an hour or less.

Passenger train schedules over these routes are significantly slower than in years past. In some cases, far slower.

Because of track conditions, much of the money spent on Amtrak is actually wasted, Haswell asserted. If rail passenger service is to attract patronage in competition with other modes of transportation, he added with unassailable logic, well- maintained track and roadbed is absolutely essential.

NARP has announced a campaign to seek "vast improvements" in railroad track and roadbed and calls on the government to require all railroads to maintain their main lines to standards sufficient for smooth, dependable operation.

If tracks were in good enough shape that freight trains could move at 60 m.p.h., the association notes, then passenger trains could be operated at 80. This could be increased to 90 or 100 with improved locomotives with a "feather touch" on the track.

It is interesting that at a time when tracks and roadbeds are in a sad and worsening state there is growing talk of having the government take over the railroads troubles that does not go as far as outright nationalization.

Should this happen, both railroads and erstwhile railroad passengers would be on the same side for a change: They could both blame Uncle Sam for the bumps.

LIGHTS OF CIVILIZATION

Two press items -- one from The New York Times and the other from the Augusta, Georgia, Chronicle- Herald, graphically portray the difference between a nation with little electric energy and a nation where electric power is taken for granted.

The New York Times piece reports what seems to be a virtual collapse of the state-run electric power industry of Cuba. "Programmed blackouts" are the current designation for the rising power failures that threaten to turn Castro's paradise into the equivalent of a dark closet. By contrast, Chronicle - Herald columnist Louis C. Harris writes of the "miracle" that may be seen from almost any elevated position in practically any metropolitan city in the United States. He says, "If the time is after dark, you can see the Miracle of America ... It is reflected in the lights of the city, millions of tiny, glowing orbs, each a symbol of American genius and American affluence."

He refers specifically to the panorama of brilliance he witnessed from a rotating hotel lounge high above the business district of Atlanta, Georgia. He was doubly impressed since he had just attended a roundtable meeting of utility representatives from all over the U.S. which made him realize how far the United States is ahead of other countries in the world in every phase of living. "In lighting alone," he writes, "there is no comparison. A hundred- watt bulb, in most other countries of the world, is as unobtainable as a whale sandwich in the Sahara ... Where electric appliances are concerned, there can scarcely be a comparison from the standpoint of beauty or beauty or efficiency. Nor can any country compare with the U. S. on the cost of electricity or the availability of it."

Those who like to find fault with the U. S. system at least have plenty of light on their subject. Both symbolically and literally, the lights of civilization have a way of going out in countries where freedom has been crushed -- and the state has taken over basic enterprises such as electric power.

WHY OUR COUNTRY'S DEFENSES ARE INSUFFICIENT

The Kremlin has not lost its hostility to our country, nor its desire to be the most powerful nation in the world. Our government thus has a responsibility to the people of our country to make sure that our defenses remain strong against any threat of attack.

But in two specific areas, our government has failed to take practical steps which could not only strengthen our defense capability but also reduce the number of innocent people whose lives would be lost should a nuclear war ever occur.

Firstly, we refused to build an anti- missile system (ABM) around our cities. In 1971, then Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard told a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee that ABM sites "planned for initial deployment in ICBM fields defend some of the most sparsely populated portions of the United States." Both administration officials and Congressional leaders have since then continued this policy, thereby leaving our cities and the millions of civilians in them unprotected.

Secondly, referring to multiple warheads for missiles (MIRV), Packard said "this Administration made a deliberate decision not to improve the accuracy of our MIRV...to what was and is technically feasible." By making this decision, our missiles have been deliberately made less accurate. If war should break out, all we could do is destroy Russian cities, with their civilian populations, rather than attacking the smaller targets which are Soviet bases, missile sites and so on. These policies could be changed if Congress would take the initiative. Letters to Congressmen and to newspapers would help to make clear the danger our country is in. HLH

Prison Still Possible: Teamsters Chiefs Isolate Hoffa, Pledge 'Fitz,' Nixon's Ally, Full Control to 1971

WASHINGTON-- Ambition is multi- dimensional-- as in the still strange case of that millionaire dabbler in Florida real estate who operates out of a posh Bal Harbour (Fla.) condominium. He's willing to give it all up in exchange for a Detroit local union-- so he can again lead the proletariat. He's the push- up champ of sunny, rather luxurious, Bay Harbor Drive up the road a bit from where the Teamsters Brotherhood high command met last week.

He's, naturally, Jimmy Hoffa, former czar of the trucking fraternity which paid him no heed during their executive board sessions at the Eden Roc Hotel. This collective snub may well be the result of advice of counsel, Charles (Chuck) Colson, who is far more familiar with Key Biscayne than with the old Collins Avenue gold coast. Or it may spring from the distaste of Teamsters general president Frank (Fitz) Fitzsimmons who is in solid control of the Brotherhood.

This is politically meaningful, nationally, even globally. It will provide Dick Nixon with powerful labor support sufficient to neutralize the AFL- CIO's razor- edged slashing of him triggered to force the President to lose his cool publicly.

Only the hand of God, with whom Jimmy Hoffa consistently confuses himself, can remove Fitz from the general presidency of the Brotherhood, which has some 900 strategically placed locals. But Hoffa is pushing-- so hard that some of his enemies inside the union may decide to let their old chief push himself right back into prison.

Thus far the Teamsters leaders, almost unanimously Pro- Nixon, haven't warred on Jimmy. They play the game by the old rules. They have kept Mrs. James Hoffa on as $48,000- a- year director of the Ladies Auxiliary of their fairly potent political operation known as DRIVE (Democrat, Republican, Independent Voter Education). Plus expenses. And Hoffa's bright son, a lawyer, still has some Teamsters clients. So with Hoffa's $1.2 million net lump sum pension, the Hoffas aren't exactly in the market for a tin-cup franchise on some busy street corner.

Virtually unnoticed, however, has been Hoffa's sworn testimony during a pre-trial deposition in a New England lawsuit. In Boston recently, he stated under oath that Chuck Colson, the President's intimate of intimates, was responsible for Dick Nixon's banning Hoffa from participating "directly or indirectly" in the management of any part of the labor movement when Mr. Nixon commuted his 13- year prison sentence in December 1971.

Further Hoffa, under oath, said that he first learned of the presidential condition that he could not get back into labor until March 6, 1980, after he was out of prison.

This conflicts directly with what Fitzsimmons has said publicly.

"He (Hoffa) knew the restrictions before he walked out of prison," said Fitz. "You can rest assured about that."

Fitz also said that Hoffa, his son and his attorney were fully aware of the conditions set by the President.

All this information is somewhere behind the Justice Dept.'s whirling revolving doors. Reportedly as soon as the political dust settles in the department both sides will be questioned. If Fitzsimmons can prove his case, Hoffa will have difficulty proving he hasn't perjured himself under oath.

There's a Grecian tragic-theater aura over the death struggle between these two men-- one, Hoffa, determined to recapture the fantastically powerful Teamsters union which can control the nation's transport system, and the other, Fitz, newly arrived at power, anguished over constant assaults as he attempts to pull his union into the 21st century. No angel, Fitz. But there now are many in industry and labor who want to see him given an even break in his "rehabilitation operation" of this mighty industrial and political juggernaut.

No one pooh- poohs or disdains Hoffa's charisma or Machiavellian skill. Nor, however, do the Teamsters leaders forget Hoffa's ties with old friends in what authorities now call the Tramunti (Luchese- Tony Ducks Corallo) organization.

These Teamsters chiefs know well their political migraine headaches-- the battle with the Farm Workers' leader Cesar Chavez and his clerical allies; the series of Justice Dept. and Internal Revenue probes into the Chicago- based Central States $1.4 billion pension fund; the shadiness of old real estate and corporate deals and loans in California, Nevada and New Mexico, just to mention a few. For the most part, though, they're out of the limelight and in the sun. That's where they want to stay.

So the Teamsters 1976 own presidential campaign has started. Recently in Orlando, Fla., the union's Southern Conference voted unanimously to endorse Fitz for reelection. Further, during a Teamsters Western Conference parley, its director, national first vice-president Einar Mohn said to Fitz: "You've got as loyal a group of Teamsters in the West as anywhere in the country. They'll support you and we'll be there at the '76 convention to support you."

At this session, Fitz listened stone- faced as even the 79-year- old former Teamsters president, Dave Beck, told him he was greater than any predecessor. There also are powerful Teamsters in New York and Chicago-- the Eastern and Central States Conferences-- who loathe Hoffa.

So it does appear that Dick Nixon's allies will control the big brotherhood come 1976. So from now to then, as Chuck Colson undoubtedly has told Dick Nixon, they'll be mighty handy fellows to have around. Hoffa can always release his energy by burying himself in his Florida real estate.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Taxpayers Ripped Off

WASHINGTON-- President Nixon's people tried to stick the taxpayers, apparently, for every possible petty bill at his estate in San Clemente, Calif., and Key Biscayne, Fla.

We have gone through a stack of bills and memos, never intended to be read outside the presidential circle. These show the taxpayers were charged for everything from stamping his golf tees with the presidential logo to furnishing his private San Clemente restroom with his favorite soap.

The usual explanation out of the White House has been that the government pays for renovations involving the President's security. The documents in our possession, however, show that the taxpayers were soaked for dozens of improvements never requested by the Secret Service.

This has also been established by Rep. Jack Brooks, D- Tex., after a thorough investigation by his House Government Operations subcommittee.

SMOKY FIREPLACE

The President apparently complained, for example, about the fireplace smoking in his den. The problem was turned over to his attorney, Herbert Kalmbach, who squawked to the contractor.

Warren B. Sturtevant, the contractor, hustled over to the San Clemente retreat and personally lit fires in the presidential fireplace, he reported, "on January 4th, 1971, the day before the President arrived and again on January 18th, after he had left. Both times the fireplace worked properly.

"I also understand that there were only two occasions out of about 10 possible times used where there was a smoking problem. My conclusion is that on the two occasions when the fireplace did smoke there must have been a different wind condition that caused a down draft." He recommended installing an exhaust fan.

The Secret Service at first resisted paying for the fan until Kalmbach's secretary, Marilyn Parent, had a meaningful talk with the agent in charge. She reported afterward to Sturtevant:

'SECURITY PURPOSES'

"Ken Iacovone informed me that SS would pay for the installation of the fireplace fan after I informed him that it definitely was placed for security purposes and how would he like it if you know who was asphyxiated because there was a certain wind condition which caused the draft to come downwards and caused the smoke to come into the room. He finally agreed with me." Cost to the taxpayers: $388.78.

The Secret Service was also persuaded to restore Pat Nixon's favorite gazebo, although it had been rejected as a security outpost. The First Lady's social secretary, Constance Stuart, explained the problem in a February 15, 1971, memo to Mrs. Nixon.

"I've looked into the matter of the restoration of the gazebo at San Clemente," Ms. Stuart reported. "The gazebo in question is the one closest to the ocean overlooking the point and it evidently is in sad need of repair.

"The Secret Service will not be taking this gazebo over as one of the posts. They would like to place some small electronic scanning (sic) devices in an already existing cabinet....

'IN GOOD TASTE'

"The gazebo would be restored to its original condition....I have been assured this work would be done in good taste and that the ultimate result would be as close to the original as possible."

The First Lady scratched an "OK" to this proposal and Ms. Stuart referred it to the General Service Administration's special projects officer, John F. Galuardi.

"Jack," she noted. "As you can see PN has OK'd the work."

An earlier June 30, 1969, report to the White House on the San Clemente complex states: "Mr. Galuardi has already informed you that he would have a carpenter, electrician, plumber, and an air conditioning- refrigeration mechanic on hand at all times, with a total force of twenty various craftsmen available on call. These people will wear the regular GSA green uniform.

"He has also made plans to have a day maid in a white uniform and a sufficient number of cleaners in grey uniform and black bow tie to furnish cleaning on a 24- hour basis. Linen towels, the preferred soap, and Scott toilet tissue will be provided in the President's restroom....

FRESH FLOWERS

"Arrangements have also been made for a florist to provide freshly cut flowers daily in all offices of the Administration Building." Up to June 30, 1968, according to the financial statements, the taxpayers laid out $4,900 for cut flowers and plants. Of this, $581 was spent on flowers for the President's residence.

At Key Biscayne, the taxpayers have paid for fixtures in the homes not only of the President but also his friend, Bebe Rebozo, next door. One work sheet calls for a "booster transformer" for "the existing kitchen...and for the existing air conditioning and Sauna Bath" at the Rebozo residence.

Special helipad and docking equipment was also requested by the Secret Service for the Coco Lobo, a boat owned by Rebozo.

Dozens of other miscellaneous items, including an ice machine that makes square ice because the President "does not like ice cube s with holes in them,' were also billed to the taxpayers.

A White House spokesman complained that the documents were part of a "partisan, unethical" campaign to embarrass the President. The spokesman said that the Secret Service had gone ahead with plans to renovate the San Clemente gazebo before Mrs. Nixon was consulted.

Ending special plates is hot issue for Bond

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — As the end of the year draws nearer, and abolishment of low-numberd license plates given to many favored politicans and their friends seems likely, Gov. Christopher S. Bond finds himself in a political hornet's nest.

He has vowed to carry out his campaign pledge and do away with special favors. The Honorary Colonel status given to Democratic party bigwigs was eliminated immediately— there were no fancy uniforms at the young Republican's inauguration in January.

Bond planned to retire the license plates to attics, just as the uniforms, but last December the outgoing Democratic administration shifted some extra employes to the Revenue Department's license issuance section and nearly 10,000 holders of the special plates were able to renew them for another year.

Now, as the days for the three and four-digit plates dwindle, Bond finds a flood of mail, a court suit and newspaper editorials on the subject.

A top elected Democrat says "it's going to be a hot issue" for Bond, "he's getting a lot of heat ... a third of the plates are held by Republicans."

Hundreds of letters have hit the governor's office and Revenue Department. A man from Poplar Bluff wrote:

"I am now past 70 with just a few years left to live and it would make an old man very happy if I could still retain my old number."

Some motorists say they got their low-numbered plates as a wedding gift, or that it's been in the family for 30 years or more, or that it matches their telephone number or house address.

Some say they have been Republicans all their lives and with them the plates are sentimental, not political.

Such is the case with Robert Dallmeyer, Jefferson City businessman and former Cole County Republican chairman. His father had number 28 license certificate even before license plates were issued for vehicles. Plate No. 28 has become not only a part of his auto, but a family heirloom.

But these cases are not typical, said Alan Woods, Bond's top aide. He said during the last 28 years of Democratic administrations the plates have become a symbol of favoritism and abuse, similar to favors granted through the patronage system.

The plates, up to 9999, have been dispensed by governors to their cronies and some have been taken away from politicans who fell out of favor. Some legislators considered it important to get a lower number than their colleagues.

The four digits are prestigious, but the three digits even more so. And having a two digit plate usually means you really had to know someone.

The late Gov. John Dalton once told a reporter:

"They cause me more trouble than anything ... I'm sure I could have sold them for $1,000 apiece. You could steal a million dollars from the state and if someone knew about it and had a low license, he wouldn't say a thing."

While the holders of low-numberd plates want them mostly just to show off, former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes declined to use his No. 1 plate, saying it was "too conspicious ... makes other drivers stare. You fell like something in a zoo."

The six elected state officials can have numbers 1 through 6 for their official cars and also the same numbers for their own autos. Bond has used the governor's cadillac only a few times and has decided to have it sold at auction. He has not picked up his personal plate No. 1 from the revenue department.

Some 200 other holders of low numbers also have not renewed them this year and the plates were recently destroyed.

A class action suit filed in Cole County Circuit Court Oct. 11, by Mr. and Mrs. John Dyke of Montgomery City, seeks a court order to require Spradling to re-issue their number 1248, which they have had since 1948. They cite a section of state law they say provides for permanent retention of plates for non-commercial vehicles.

Ann Landers

Reader asks if watch pig is smarter than watchdog

Dear Ann Landers: I have been "going with" I mean mostly talking to him on the phone. (My phone bills have kept me broke.) Ed gets out here only once every sixty days. We met twice in Kansas which is about halfway. I am 24, divorced, with one child.

For a while Ed sent me postcards. I have been phoning him every weekend all over the country. I write him a long letter every day. Two weeks ago I was supposed to phone him in Detroit. I called at exactly the time he suggested. He said he couldn't talk to me because he was "in a meeting." He asked me to call him the next night, same time, so I did.

Ed answered the phone. I started to speak but he tried to disguise his voice, and said, "You have the wrong room." I yelled, "Ed, this sounds like YOU." He replied, "It's not me. I'm not here."

Ann, that was ten days ago and I haven't heard from him since. What do you think? —Completely Baffled

Dear Baff: I think when a men tells you he's not there, you ought to take his word for it. And don't throw out any more money on long-distance telephone calls. You've been permanently disconnected.

Dear Ann Landers: We live in an area that has had several break-ins. My wife asked me to buy a watchdog. I've heard that pigs are smarter that dogs and I'd like to try a watch-pig. Have you ever heard of this? Do you think my neighbors would mind? —Tallahassee Reader.

Dear Tal.: I don't know where you got the idea that pigs are smarter than dogs but I won't argue the point. Let's assume that a smart pig IS smarter than a dumb dog, there are zoning laws that say you can't keep certain animals in residential areas. (I learned this when a reader wrote to complain about a neighbor who kept a Shetland pony in the kitchen and an alligator in the bathtub.) Personally, I'd rather hear "bow wow" around the house than "oink oink." Check the law before you go hog wild.

Dear Ann Landers: Should a woman who inherits money after she has been married a few years handle it herself or should this money be shared with her husband? My inheritance has created so much trouble between my husband and me that I wish to heaven I had never seen it.

I want to give a few sizable gifts to the charities I beleive in. My husband has asked me to hand the money over to him for "investments." When I refused we got into an argument and he hasn't spoken to me for two days. Finally, I told him I believe I have the right to decide what happens to the money that was left to me. He said, "It is not done that way in compatible families." What about it, Ann? You seem to have a compatible family. —Mi$erable $ally

Dear $ally: True, but we have no inherited money. In my opinion you should handle your inheritance as you wish and your husband should forget about it.

Confidential to Teeth On Edge And Going Berserk: You can't divorce a woman you've been married to for 35 years because she moves her lips when she reads. Find out what is REALLY bothering you and deal with the problem in a mature, rational manner.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism — Hope And Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stanped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

Dr. White criticizes media views on diets

By BOB MONTGOMERY
Area Dairy Specialist

A "perfect environment for nonsense" is provided in America by the communications media, says Dr. Philip L. White, secretary of the American Medical Association's Council on Foods and Nutrition.

Dr. White is, of course, talking about nutritional nonsense. And he exmpasizes that radio and television, especially, are constantly promoting the views of food faddists without regard to whether their information has a basis in scientific fact or not.

In an article in the October issue of Nutrition News, a four-times-a-year bulletin for nutrition educators published by National Dairy Council, Dr. White said:

"Why is nutrition nonsense so lucrative a non-profession? Why are we faced with one bad diet book after another? How can fallacious authors rise to national prominence as on fatty clouds almost overnight, Why? Because the media of mass communications ignore peer review and provide tailor-made megaphones for anything sensational.

"The media, especially radio and television, are so hungry for controversial or 'different' viewpoints (to stimulate audience interest) they seem to seek out those who march to a different drum. The enormous number of talk shows create a talent demand that exceeds the supply.

"Why do the media permit Hollywood personalities to spread their foolish notions about health foods? Perhaps it's because after their umpteenth time around the talk show circuit, nutrition nonsense is all they have to talk about. They are invited back because somebody must fill the chairs on stage. The mass media does provide the perfect environment for nonsense."

In his article, one of Dr. White's main points is that science benefits from peer review — the process by which a scientist's report is reviewed by other scientists to see if his research has been valid and his conclusions or hypothesis reasonable. As Dr. White suggests, no such review is involved when the food faddist presents his ideas to the public, nor do most newspapers or other media require it.

One has to be encouraged, though, by the great increase in the number of newspaper and magazine science writers who do know science and do not relay nonsense to the public. One problem, of course, is the question, "is information news?" It is news that sells newspapers, and sensationalism and controversy build ratings for radio and television. And Americans have always had some interest in the medicine show, in the showman-quack.

"So I predict food faddism and nutritional misinformation will be around for awhile. But people should guard against swallowing nonsense and rely instead on sources of factual information rather than opinion or notions. It is, after all, our own health we want to protect."

Brands missing; but hunger is no real threat

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Consumers may find some of their favorite brands missing from supermarket shelves these days, but no one is likely to go hungry because of food shortages.

That's the finding of an Associated Press survey of major retailers across the country.

Generally, the larger chains are in better shape than smaller companies which report some problems finding specific items—particularly fresh fruit and vegetables.

There are scattered shortages of some items—parsley is hard to find in Chicago, for example, and there's no pork loin at an Atlanta chain—but most things are available.

Retailers say the situation really depends on what happens after the expiration of the 60-day price freeze that President Nixon announced on June 13.

Officials of the Cost of Living Council said on Thursday that they wanted to remove food price controls as soon as possible. They denied, however, that the freeze was causing chaos in the industry.

At the same time, the administration announced new controls on the export of 41 agricultural items.

Grandmother is new doctor

NEWTOWN, Conn. (AMA News Features) — She's 51 years old and a grandmother — and a brand- new doctor interning at St. Vincent's Hospital in nearby Bridgeport.

"You can do anything you want to do if you want it badly enough," says Dr. Barbara Jean Gretsch.

When Dr. Gretsch got her MD degree last May from the Medical College of Pennsylvania, it fulfilled a dream she had had since childhood in Louisville, Ky., where she lived near the University of Louisville medical school. She made it through pre- med school, but lack of money halted her education in the early 1940s. She became a WAC officer in the Army, then married Richard Gretsch at the end of World War II.

Then came eight children. When the youngest, Molly, now 11, was four years old, Dr. Gretsch decided to try and realize what most people would surely call an impossible dream. Officials at one university told her it not only was impossible, it was "absolutely, utterly impossible." But she persisted, and took several years of college work prior to applying to medical school.

Knowing her applications, if mailed, would likely go right into the wastebasket, Mrs. Gretsch personally visited a number of East Coast medical schools.

"They were always polite, but when I told them what I was there for they also were very firm in telling me that I was rejected," she says.

Finally, she visited the Medical College of Pennsylvania, then known as Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania. "By some miracle, I was accepted."

On many weekends, while her classmates studied, Mrs. Gretsch drove about 400 miles to be with her family.

The energetic grandmother hopes to open a family practice and work for at least 20 years. This is probably about as long as many younger women physicians practice before they quit to raise families, Dr. Gretsch said.

As for mature people, especially women, trying medical school, she says:

"I think in terms of age 40. To my mind this is the group that is prime. By that age, there has been an opportunity to settle back and look at life a little. There has been an opportunity to taste of other wines and find them wanting. Marriage is no longer new. Children are no longer babes. If the dedication is there, with the courage to face the work required, bolstered by the ability to learn, these people should be considered very seriously."

Book Review

THE NATURAL BABY FOOD COOKBOOK
by Margaret Elizabeth Kenda and Phyllis S. Williams
Avon 14787/$1.95
168 pp.

According to Margaret Kenda and Phyllis Williams, authors of Avon's THE NATURAL BABYFOOD COOKBOOK, high levels of salt, sugar, undigestible starch, emulsifiers, color fixatives, and until recently, MSG, are some of the unnecessary, expensive, and possibly harmful ingredients in the 864 jars of prepared baby food the average baby consumes in thee first 18 months of his life. The authors' cookbook offers a wealth of inexpensive, nutritious, delicious, and easy to fix alternatives to the prepared baby food trap, including everything from baby and junior foods, finger foods, teething biscuits, party dishes, special recipes for the sick and allergic child, along with meal planning charts, nutrition information, and a bibliography of reference works.

Club offers dogwoods

NEW MADRID— New Madrid Woman's Club is selling flowering dogwood trees for the 11th straight year. To place an order, call or come by the home of Mrs. Bud Hartwell, 1215 Scott St., phone number 748-5971. Trees are three to four feet tall and come in white and pink.

This is not a money making project for the club but a city beautification project. Because of the late warm weather, the tree shipment was delayed.

The best time to plant the trees is after the first freeze.

Girl tells of sexual involvement with officers

By DOUG STONE
Associated Press
Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)— She would wave and get policemen to stop their cars, talk a little and then sometimes have sex with them, says a teen- age blonde. "They were real sweet to me," she adds.

Charlotte Tyler, 19, of Paris, Ark., told reporters Sunday of sexual involvement with officers, not only in Memphis, but also in Arkansas and Missouri.

"I'm not ashamed about nothing," she said.

Police Director Jay W. Hubbard said hours of polygraph tests confirmed the young woman's allegations, "including some of the more serious ones."

Asked how many officers she'd been involved with in Memphis after her arrival Sept. 1, she said, "I do not want to state it. No offense."

Wearing a metallic gold jump suit with a cowboy belt around the waist, Mrs. Tyler said, "I didn't want to get them in trouble."

Police sources have said that up to 200 officers on the 1,100 man force may be involved, but Hubbard has said he believes it is more like 20.

Mrs. Tyler allowed reporters, minus cameras and recorders, into her police-acquired motel suite, where officers said they had been questioning her for three days. She was flanked by a priest, two matrons and investigators. She said she is divorced and the mother of a 2- year- old daughter being cared for by her parents.

Inspector H. H. Leatherwood, head of the Internal Affairs Bureau, said Mrs. Tyler gave names of officers and took lie detector tests after saying she wanted to assist police in answering questions.

Mrs. Tyler said she would like to get on a police department and work in the vice squad. "I bet I know more about it that a lot of people," she said.

She declined to say whether she had sexual encounters in police stations, where Leatherwood said she sometimes was around at roll call. Mrs. Tyler responded to a question, "In squad cars? Some."

She said she likes officers because "they are well trained, they know their work, they are good people."

Her activities were not for money, she said, althought it was her arrest Oct. 8 on a charge of soliciting that led to the investigation. At the time of a required medical examination, police said she was found to have gonorrhea and to have remakred to the vice squad that a lot of policemen must have it too.

ECOLOGY GUIDELINES FOR BULLDOZERS

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — Even the bulldozer operators are getting, and perhaps even absorbing, the ecology message on Long Island.

The Nassau-Suffolk Contractors Assn. has drawn up guidelines for construction workers including:

— Disturb only those trees, shrubs, topsoil and ground cover necessary.

— Protect natural surface drainage.

— Limit noise and unsightliness.

— Notify authorites if potential environmental damage seems imminent.

Time calls on Nixon to resign

NEW YORK (AP) — Time magazine says "Richard Nixon and the nation have passed a tragic point of no return" and has called on the President to resign.

Printing its first editorial since it began publication 50 years ago, the weekly news-magazine said Sunday that Nixon "has irredeemably lost his moral authority, the confidence of most of the country and, therefore, his ability to govern effectively."

Time's sister publication, Life, had endorsed Nixon for President in 1960, 1968 and 1972. Life ceased publication last December.

The Time editorial charged that, under Nixon, the White House has become "pervaded by an atmosphere of aggressive amorality — amorality almost raised to a creed."

Contending there was now a "hopeless miasma of deceit and suspicion" surrounding the administration, the magazine declared: "The nightmare of uncertainty must be ended. A fresh start must be made."

Time said that, even if Nixon were impeached, brought to trial in the Senate and acquitted, "the process would leave him and the country devastated."

New system needs fewer representatives

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A proposal calling for the substitution of a single Democratic party representative from wards and townships for the current committeeman and committeewoman setup has received support from Donald C. Anton, chairman of the St. Louis County Democratic Committee.

At a weekend hearing before a state subcommittee considering revisions in the constitution and bylaws of the Missouri Democratic Committee, Anton said too many committeemen and committeewomen have fought with one another in the past, causing divisions within the state party.

He said a single ward or township representative would eliminate such divisiveness.

The state committee has been hearing testimony from party leaders in anticipation of new rules on the selection of delegates to national conventions from the party's national committee.

Both Anton and Paul M. Berra, chairman of the St. Louis Democratic Committee, testified in favor of a Missouri presidential primary as a means of easing disputes arising during the selection of party delegates.

THE HEATING FUEL SHORTAGE:

WHERE WE SET OUR THERMOSTATS WILL DETERMINE HOW SEVERE IT WILL BE

A heating fuel shortage of as much as 10% has been forecast for this winter. Oil, gas, and electricity will all be involved.

You don't like it. We don't like it. But the fact is, there just isn't going to be enough heating fuel to go around.

This may cause some very unpleasant things to happen. Schools closing and kids missing their classes. Businesses closing and workers missing paychecks. Brownouts by electric utilities.

But there is something we can all do to ease the situation.

CONSERVATION: IT HELPED BEAT THE GASOLINE SHORTAGE LAST SUMMER

If we all use a little less, there'll be more for us all. Last summer was a case in point.

The forecast was for a shortage of gasoline based on normal usage. Standard and other oil companies urged people to conserve gasoline. And they responded by using less gasoline so that very few communities suffered severe run-outs. In fact, most people felt nothing more than a minor inconvenience.

YOUR THERMOSTAT IS THE KEY TO HEATING FUEL CONSERVATION THIS WINTER

If everyone would dial down their thermostat this winter, it could ease the shortage tremendously. For example, if you dial down a few degrees to a daytime setting of not more than 70°, you can conserve a substantial amount of heating fuel over the year. That's true whether you use oil, gas or electricity.

And if you dial down another 5° overnight—to a setting of 65°—you can conserve even more.

If you go away for the weekend, remember to dial down the thermostat to not more than 55°, so you don't waste fuel by overheating an empty house.

We're asking all Standard employees to dial down both at work and at home. We are asking all businesses and government to dial down, too. And we're asking you to do the same. It's a job for all of us because it's important to all of us.

For a booklet on additional ways to conserve heating fuel, contact your Standard Heating Fuel man, or write: Heating Fuel Conservation, Standard Oil, MC-1506, P.O. Box 6110A, Chicago, Illinois 60680.

WHAT IS CAUSING THE SHORTAGE

The international crude oil situation has been bad right along, and recent developments in the Mid-East have made it even worse.

When one source of crude supply tightens up, it puts extra burdens not only on other crude sources, but on the availability of foreign refined products for import, as well.

U.S. refineries probably won't be able to run at capacity this winter because they won't have the available crude oil necessary to maintain full production. This affects not only people who heat with oil, but electric power as well, since many utilities burn oil to generate electricity.

WHAT STANDARD OIL IS DOING TO EASE THE SHORTAGE

For months now, we've been making as much heating oil as we could. We have made a concerted effort to encourage our customers to fill their storage. We have built maximum inventories at our bulk plants and terminals. We offered advice on conservation. All of this was done so that we could be in better shape to take care of our customers.

Further, we implemented a voluntary allocation plan to our agents and dealers based on previous years' usage. We also have implemented the government's allocation plan.

IT'S UP TO ALL OF US

Just a little heating fuel conserved per home per week can make the difference between a severe shortage and a mild one. Let's all dial down that thermostat and beat this thing together.

Dr. Long to be featured speaker

Walker Long

Dr. Walker J. Long of Poplar Bluff, president of the Missouri Optometric Association, will be the featured speaker at a meeting of the Southeast Missouri Optometic Society Saturday at Ramada Inn, Highway 62 East, according to Dr. Terry Swinger, president of the SeMo group.

Dr. Long will be accompanied by Dr. Ronald Knox of St. Louis, Missouri Optometric Society president-elect, and Robert E. Marsh of Jefferson City, MOA executive director.

Dr. Long, a native of Bloomfield, attended preoptometry school for two years at Southwest Missouri State University in Springfield before earning his doctor of optometry degree from Southern College of Optometry at Memphis, Tenn., in 1947.

He established his practice in Poplar Bluff in 1948 where he is presently associated with his son, Dr. Jerry Long.

Dr. Long is a member of the American Optometric Association, Missouri Optometric Association and the Southeast Missouri Optometric Society. He has served the state organization in a number of capacities and was elected to the board of trustees in 1966. He and his wife Lettye are parents of four children.

Low-moisture beans not getting premium

JEFFERSON CITY — "When it looked like the long, wet fall would result in the production of a lot of high-moisture soybeans, many grain elevators increased their discounts for high moisture, without paying a corresponding premium for low-moisture beans," charges C. R. "Dick" Johnston, president of the Missouri Farm Bureau.

"A short time ago," he says, "the elevators raised their discount rates to discourage farmers from bringing in high-moisture beans. This was justified - at least partly -- because the possibility of a fuel shortage would have compounded their grain-drying difficulties.

"Now, with a couple of weeks of dry weather behind us, we're facing a different situation," Johnsoton asserts. "What is happening now is that many farmers are bringing in large quantities of low-moisture grains and are being paid no premium for it. Since farmers are docked for selling beans with more than 13.5 percent moisture content, we believe they should be paid more for beans with less moisture."

Johnston states that many elevators will pay a low price to a farmer who sells them high- moisture beans, then buy low- moisture beans from other farmers without paying them a premium. Then, they blend to reach the 13.5 percent optimum, and sell the beans at a good price.

"While we don't quarrel with a reasonable dock for high moisture," Johnston says, we believe farmers with low-moisture beans should be paid an equivalent premium. If some elevators won't adjust their rates, I would encourage farmer to shop around for better prices, because some elevators are better to do business with than others.

Bush calls for change in image

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The current image of the Republican party must be changed, said GOP National Chairman George Bush here this weekend, but not because of the Watergate scandal.

"We have an image problem because we're somehow the rich, the exclusive, the closed party," Bush told Republican workers and officials. He said the party wanted more ethnic candidates to "put to lie this myth of exclusiveness."

Speaking at a "New Majority Workshop" sponsored by the Republican National Committee, Bush said he was confident the party will emerge unharmed from the Watergate scandal.

"A person who tries to run against a Republican candidate on the basis of scandal is going to get beaten," he warned. "We haven't seen any erosion yet. People are sorting out the party from the allegations that have been made. The Voters are fair."

Watergate has turned many Americans away from politics, he said, adding that the reaction appears to be hurting the Democrats more than the GOP.

Cage tourney to semi-finals

By BILL HARRISON

BELL CITY — First round play in the Junior Varsity tournament was completed here Saturday with Bloomfield getting by Puxico 56-40 and Kelly whipping Oran 51-43.

In the opening game the Kelly Hawks used a fast moving offense and pressure defense to overcome a 23-20 halftime lead by the Eagles of Joe Scott and move into the semi- finals Monday night against the Advance Hornets.

The taller Oran Eagles controlled the boards in the first period to take the 11-8 lead but Kelly used their defensive tactics to hold the Eagles back in the second period. Both team put 12 points on the scoreboard in the period.

After intermission the Hawks press forced the Eagles into several floor mistakes and bad passes and outscored their opponent 19-10 in the quarter to pull the game out of the fire. Kelly played defense the last period holding the Eagles to 10 points while netting 12 for themselves. Johnson, Schlosser, and Hulshof hit 15, 13, 14 respectively for the Hawks. Anderson hit 12 for Oran.

Coach Don Metz of the Bloomfield Wildcats used his teams height advantage to take care of the Puxico Indians to go against Scott Central Monday night.

The Cats controlled the boards and jumped off to a fast 16-8 first period lead and pressed the small guards of the Indians into bad passes the rest of the game to keep the lead safe. Jackson hit 20 points to lead the Wildcats to victory and Hancock and Campbell hit 16 apiece for the Indians.

Scoring:

KELLY

Johnson 15, Romanowski 4, Schlosser 12, Hulshof 14, McElmurry 6.

ORAN

Anderson 12, Campbell 10, Dirnberter 9, Taylor 8, Burlison 2, Sencloy 2.

Score by Quarters:

Kelly	8	12	19	12	—51
Oran	11	12	10	10	—43

BLOOMFIELD (56)

Jackson 10, Sharp 4, Lafferty 12, Jackson 20, Barnes 10.

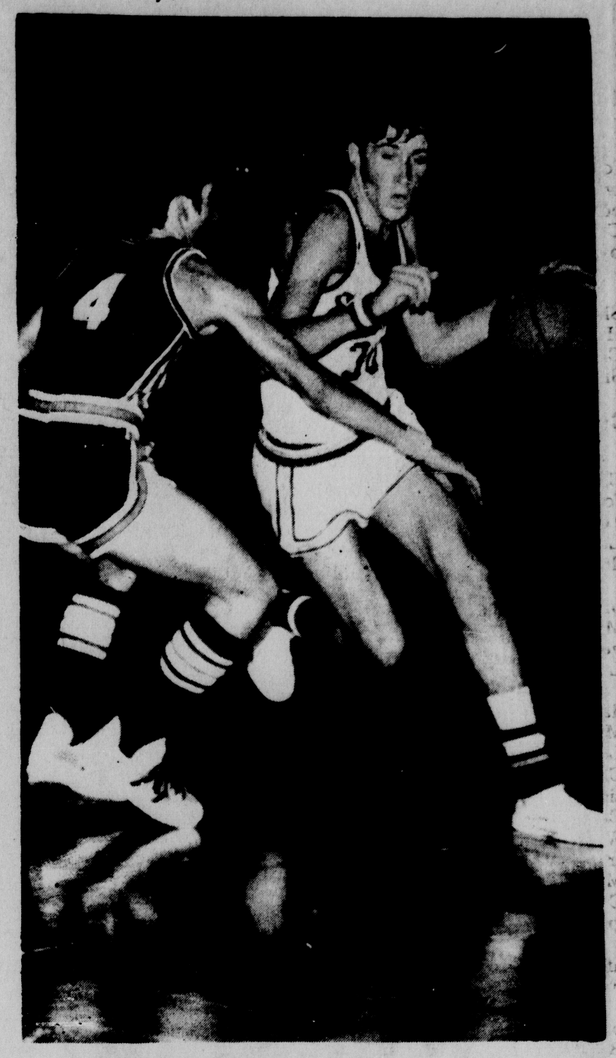

PUXICO (40)

Hancock 16, Caldwell 2, Campbell 16, Peyton 6.

Score by Quarters:

Bloomfield	16	12	14	14	—56
Puxico	8	12	8	12	—40

Coach predicts Mizzou defeat

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Third-ranked Oklahoma will beat 12th-ranked Missouri in their Big Eight Conference football showdown Saturday.

That's the opinion of Coach Vince Gibson of Kansas State, who has a pretty fair background for basing his appraisal.

Only last Saturday, Kansas State, after giving Missouri a scare, was thoroughly thrashed by the Tigers 31-7. A week earlier, the Wildcats, without frightening Oklahoma in the least, were soundly trampled by the Sooners 56-14.

"Oklahoma is a better football team than Missouri," Gibson said, "but Missouri will play them close."

The Sooner-Tiger struggle, to be played at Columbia, Mo., will headline another big Saturday in Big Eight football. Nebraska, 13th ranked, is at home against Iowa State. Colorado, ranked No. 17, invades Kansas, and Kansas State travels to Oklahoma State.

Oklahoma tightened its grip on first place in the league race last weekend by overcoming Iowa State 34-17, giving the Sooners a 3-0 conference record and a 6-0-1 mark over-all. Missouri, 3-1 and 7-1, kept hot on the Sooners' heels with its come-from-behind decision over the Wildcats.

Nebraska, 2-1-1 and 6-1-1, remained hopeful by routing Colorado 28-16. Kansas, 2-1-1 and 52-1, likewise, clung to its hopes by surviving a late field goal attempt by Oklahoma State and tying the Cowboys 10-10.

Kansas State, 1-3 and 4-4, grabbed a 7-0 lead over Missouri in the second quarter and completely outclassed the Tigers until Ray Bybee got off a 65-yard run to set up the tying tally. After the Bengals got even on John Cherry's fiveyard pass to John Kelsey, the complexion changed completely in favor of the Tigers.

"They came up with the big play when they had to have it, every critical time," said Gibson.

Missouri Cocah Al Onofrio said Bybee's run "was the thing that broke the game for us. That one brought us back."

The Sooners trailed Iowa State, 0-4 and 2-5, by 17-7 but Steve Davis threw two touchdown passes and Joe Washington tallied twice, once on a 30-yard run. Washington ran for 136 yards.

Nebraska, scoring 14 points in each of the first two quarters, picked up two touchdowns on Dave Humm's passes and the others on runs of one and nine yards by Tony Davis. Humm's pitches were for 10 yards to Brent Longwell and 21 yards to Frosty Anderson.

Colorado was behind 28-3 at the half but came back with touchdowns on a five-yard run by Bo Matthews and a 73-yard pass from Billy Waddy to David Williams. The Buffs are 2-2 and 5-3.

Cameras working despite problems

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Mariner 10 was flashing pictures to earth today despite a problem with a heating system for its cameras, said flight controllers at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

"We still can't turn on the heating devices for the cameras; but even though they're running cold, they are working within the design limits," a spokesman said Sunday. The devices are used to stabilize heat differences between the cameras and the rest of the spacecraft.

Officials said more than 350 pictures of the earth and moon had been transmitted during the weekend. The pictures were bright and clear, they said.

Mariner 10 is scheduled to fly within 3,300 miles of Venus on Feb. 5, 1974, and use the gravity of Venus to direct the craft on to Mercury. The craft is expected to fly within 620 miles of Mercury on March 29, 1974.

Some intrusions vital to safety

KANSAS CITY (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley said here Sunday night that "any law enforcement agency's activities are an intrusion on some individual's total freedom."

"Any arrest is an intrusion, but a necessary one, to preserve the rights of individuals who are victims of those who threaten the safety and property of others," Kelley said.

The FBI chief was one of four guests appearing before some 550 persons at the Kansas City Press Club's annual Griddle Show. It being a homecoming of sorts to the city where he was police chief for 12 years, Kelley was not pushed onto the griddle by the panel as were the other guests—Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan, Rep. Jerry Litton, D-Mo, and Joseph D. McNamara, the former New York police veteran who just last week succeeded Kelley as Kansas City police chief.

Kelley, who received a standing ovation, expressed hope the FBI's new policy of "openness" would give an improved image of the bureau. "We feel that if the people know the truth, they will continue to give us their trust and support," he said.

The FBI, he said, had been falsely accused of usurping its authority. "I want to assure you the FBI is not violating civil liberties. We do not compile political dossiers. We do not violate constitutional procedures," he said.

Dole, former chairman of the Republican National Committee, said there are "enough questions not answered" about Watergate and related matters that warrant an investigation into whether impeachment proceedings should be undertaken against the President.

But he said, "I haven't lost my faith in the President yet," and therefore was not calling for Nixon's resignation.

Dole, who will be up for reelection next year, said he doesn't feel scandals in Washington will hurt his chances or those of other GOP office-seekers. "I see no reason to fault the Republican Party just because people with no experience in politics left a stain on the system," he said.

Litton, a freshman congressman, said Republicans probably will be putting more pressure on the President to resign than will Democrats. If the President does leave office before his term expires, he said, it would be by resignation rather than impeachment and "I wouldn't be surprised to see that happen in the next 12 months."

McNamara was asked about a law allowing officers to shoot fleeing felons.

"Some people think the police department is shooting too many people. Others think they're not shooting enough," he said. The audience laughed. "It is not the policeman's function to punish. His function is to apprehend and to bring individuals to the judicial system."

County uncertain of fee offices

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — An aide to supervisor Lawrence K. Roos of St. Louis County has indicated the county would not want to accept responsibility for the operation of Missouri Revenue Department fee offices as proposed by Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

The comment by Roos aide Robert Baer came over the weekend in response to a letter from Revenue Department chief James Spradling asking county collectors for their opinions on the Bond proposal.

Under the formula drawn up by the state, Baer said the county would set up eight offices and hire 57 employes compared to the 17 offices with 100 employes currently operated by the state.

County officials, he said, have expressed uncertainty that only eight offices would be sufficient to serve county residents.

During his gubernatorial campaign, Bond had promised to eliminate the fee offices under the state because he claimed they were "political plums."

Spradling's office has estimated the county could receive $430,000 yearly by operating the fee offices and collecting the 40-cent fee paid by residents for license plates and other services.

Boycott could result in more fuel problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans may be forced to drive their automobiles slower, and some could find themselves shivering in the dark because of the fuel shortage, federal officials say.

In a magazine interview published Sunday, White House energy chief John A. Love held out the possibility that residents in some parts of the country could find themselves short of electricity this winter.

"If the Arab boycott continues for an extended period, and the American people do not take steps to conserve energy, then additional government action will be necessary or we will, in fact, have blackouts or brownouts," Love told U.S. News & World Report.

Love said the areas of greatest concern were the East Coast, particularly New York City and New England, and the upper Midwest.

Speaking at a truckers convention in Miami Beach, Federal Highways Administrator Norbert Tiemann said his agency was considering asking that vehicle speed limits on federal roads be reduced as a fuel-conservation step.

U.S. officials, however, have stopped well short of calling for the nation to follow the example of the Netherlands, where a ban on Sunday driving has taken effect because of an oil embargo imposed on the Dutch by eight Arab countries. The United States also is on the Arabs' embargo list.

Bridgeport, Conn., opened the 1973 football season with the nation's best winning streak — 21 in a row.

Temperature, precipitation expected near normal

By LEONARD F. HAND
Agricultural Meteorologist

PORTAGEVILLE — Both temperature average and total precipitation are expected to fall within near normal categories through the Bootheel region for the month of November.

High pressure systems reaching the mid and lower Mississippi Valley will deliver air from polar rather than tropical source regions for the most part: maritime polar crossing the western mountain ranges and continental polar moving southward out of the Canadian plains.

Little opportunity for extensive southerly flow from the Gulf region appears likely, although some modifying influence from that source may be felt at times.

The Gulf moisture source may offer sufficient input to touch off showers with the cold frontal passages. This will be needed to build totals of nearly four inches of moisture normal in the Bootheel this month.

The most favorable distribution would be one which delayed delivery of the bulk of wet weather until late in the period. Daily extended outlooks will be valuable guides to trends during these next few critical weeks.

Signs of the first killing freeze of the season are among the more sought after prospects. Climatology places the normal date of earliest moderate freeze for the Bootheel about the 30th of October across the northern edge and Nov. 20 in the southern fringes. That means a shelter temperature range of 24 to 28 degrees. Until north winds deliver a sufficiently chilling sample of air this far south, however, that event will not be observed.

Meantime, farmers report difficulty in combining soybeans because stalks still retain excessive moisture. Many fields still show leaves on plants even though grain moisture has dropped to 13 per cent or lower. Some of this is thought to be varietal, and much is due to the predominantly late plantings and maturity this season.

Cotton, too, is well leafed, either with new growth, because of poor results with defoliants, or combinations of both. Temperatures have held up better than expected in terms of weekly averages at or well above normal most of the month.

At this point in the season little moisture is required by the plants and an adequate supply has been sustained even by light rainfall this month.

Stalling of excessive rains well to the west early in the month spared Bootheel farmers a serious and costly delay in harvest schedules. The second half of the month was characterized by little or no moisture input by rains until showers last weekend brought the first interruption in a two-week session of sunny and dry days.

Most rains were light, less than a half inch, with a few spots near an inch indicated. At this stage of the season, it doesn't take much rain to bring the harvest to a temporary halt. Evaporation progresses at a slow pace at best, and much of the rain that falls remains within easy access to the surface as a source for dew and ground fog.

Recent rains, though generally light, were beneficial on land sown to wheat that was too dry for germination. End of season field work is progressing well with soils workable and memories spurring farmers to take advantage of it.

Rainfall totals for Bootheel stations Oct. 1 through 30 are: Portageville, 1.56 inches; Sikeston, 2.34; Malden, 0.85; Kennett, 0.95; Poplar Bluff, 1.86; Charleston, 1.32; and East Prairie, 1.67 inches.

Normal November precipitation for the bootheel as a whole is 3.89 inches.

Normals for individual cities are:

Cape Girardeau, 3.61; Dexter, 3.87; Morehouse, 4.06; Parma, 4.16; Sikeston, 4.18; Caruthersville, 3.87; Doniphan, 3.81; New Madrid, 4.28; and Poplar Bluff, 3.78.

Short term averages for other cities:

Advance, 3.42; Bloomfield, 4.10; Clearwater Dam, 3.62; Malden, 3.60; Puxico, 4.17; Wappapello Dam, 3.85; Bernie, 4.63; Charleston, 4.46; Kennett, 4.31; Portageville, 4.27; and Qulin, 4.46.

Long term records show that for those Novembers with near normal precipitation, totals averaged 3.00 inches at Poplar Bluff, 2.81 inches at Sikeston and 3.16 inches at Caruthersville. Under those conditions, totals have ranged from 2.22 to 4.00 inches at Poplar Bluff, from 2.35 to 3.95 at Sikeston and from 2.25 to 3.85 inches at Caruthersville.

Highlights and sidelights

Legislature to consider criminal code revision

JEFFERSON CITY — A proposal to totally revise the Missouri Criminal Code has received its first legislative airing.

Edward H. Hunvald, Jr., executive director of the Committee to Draft a Modern Criminal Code, outlined the proposed revisions at a joint meeting of House and Senate committees on last Tuesday in Jefferson City.

Hunvald, a professor at the University of Missouri-Columbia Law School, told the legislators that while the new criminal code may not be perfect, it is "a vast improvement over the present law." Its purpose, he said, was to eliminate obsolete and unconstitutional laws, make the language of the statutes more understandable, and make penalties uniform and appropriate to crimes.

Sen. Ike Skelton (D-Lexington), chairman of the Senate committee, said the proposal would bring the state's criminal laws "out of the dark ages".

"This proposed revision of Missouri's criminal code," he said, "is one of the greatest challenges the Missouri legislature has had in modern times."

Missouri's criminal statutes were last revised in 1835, 14 years after the state was founded.

The hearing was the first of several on the new code. "Hopefully, we will be able to work on corrections or additions in time to put it in bill form by the opening of the session," Skelton said.

Work on the new criminal code was begun four years ago when the Committee to Draft a Modern Criminal Code was appointed consisting of 14 lawyers, judges and legislators. Attorney General John C. Danforth, the Lieutenant Governor, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the Director of theDepartment of Corrections, the Superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, and the president of the Prosecuting Attorneys Association each appointed two members.

After the resignation of some of the original members, the committee, in 1971, selected an additional 14 members. The committee totals 24 members at the present time.

Supreme court Commissioner Norwin D. Houser has served as chairman of the committee since its inception.

Hunvald and three other law professors from the University of Missouri-Columbia and St. Louis University law schools did the original research and rewrites.

The committee studied the criminal codes of 15 other states, the modern penal code of the American Law Institute, and a newly drafted federal penal code in preparing the proposed code for Missouri.

In the new code, the number of sections has been reduced from the existing 491 to 238. This reduction, according to Houser, has the effect of "streamlining the criminal law without omitting any necessary protections afforded society".

The existing 35 sections on gambling, for example, have been reduced to 12, and obsolete statutes such as the one that makes it a misdemeanor for the driver of a hack or stagecoach to be intoxicated to such a degree as to endanger the safety of passengers have been eliminated.

Many sections outlawed by recent Supreme Court decisions also have been eliminated or rewritten.

As part of its effort to clarify the language of the statutes, the committee reduced the definitions of the criminal intent of the accused to four categories. Existing laws make an act criminal if it is done corruptly, falsely, feloniously, fraudulently, maliciously, on purpose and of malice aforethought, cruelly, contemptuously, wrongfully and so on. "These ill- defined adverbs have required literally dozens of appeals to judicially determine their meaning," Houser said. "All this needless grinding of the judicial machinery will stop if our code is adopted."

Under the new code, for any act to result in criminal punishment it must be done either with purpose, knowledge, recklessness or criminal negligence.

"This will cut down on the number of appeals," Houser said, "and will provide the policeman on the beat with a statute he can read and understand without all the legal gobbledegook. It also will provide the defense lawyer with a plain statement on the law on the basis of which he can with confidence advise his client, and will provide the prosecuting attorenys, courts and juries with a rule and standard of conduct that is clearly stated, understandable, and which has sense and meaning."

The new code also is aimd at eliminating discrepancies that exist in sentencing under the present laws. At the presen. time, the maximum sentence for a person convicted of chicken stealing is greater than that for someone who has been convicted of assault with intent to kill.

The new code would separate felonies into four classes and misdemeanors into three classes with each category carrying its own range of punishment. A Class A felony authorizes the imposition of imprisonment for a term of from 10 to 30 years, or life. A Class D felony would carry a prison term of up to five years.

The new code also would take the responsibility for sentencing out of the hands of the jury and give the power to the trial judge. Proponents of this proposal, which Skelton called "probably one of the most controversial points in the whole bill," argue that the judge is in a better position to sentence that better fits the case.

Missouri is one of only a couple of states that don't follow this procedure.

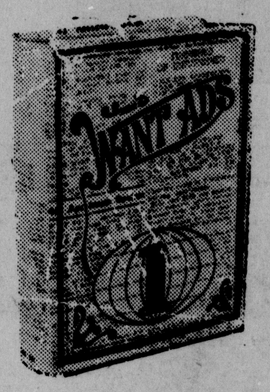

The section on imprisonment includes a provision aimed at the rehabilitation of those convicted. Sentences automatically would be reviewed to insure uniformity around the state, and the last one- third of an inmate's sentence would be served outside the prison, but under supervision.

The committee felt this provision would reduce recidivism by writing provisions for parole and rehabilitation into the law, rather than having inmates serve their "flat time" and go back into society without supervision.

Sections on abortion, wire-tapping and the death penalty were drafted by the committee, but not made a part of the new code. These controversial sections were included in an appendix so they could be considered separately by the legislators.

Schools vote higher levy

A survey completed by the State Department of Education -- with 84 percent of the schools responding -- shows that of the 89 school districts holding operating levy elections last April, 65 voted a higher levy. The increases averaged 27 cents per $100 valuation.

Prayer for today
from the Upper Room

Now abide faith, hope, love, these three; but the greatest of these is love. (I Corinthians 13:13)
PRAYER: O Lord, fill our hearts with love for all persons. Take from us all malice and hatred and fill us with Thy love. Lead us in the paths of righteousness for Thy name's sake. In the Master's name we pray. Amen.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Spleen functions aren't all known

Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am writing you today concerning my mother who is 82 years old. Until recently she was in perfect health. Now she has developed heart trouble, diabetes and high blood pressure. The last physical examination revealed that she now has an enlarged spleen and was anemic. Iron pills were prescribed for this.

What is the spleen? The doctor did not prescribe medicine for this condition, nor did he recommend surgery. He said that the enlarged spleen was not dangerous and recommended that she watch her diet. How serious is this condition?

Dear Reader — The spleen is a very small organ that lies just under the diaphragm at the edge of the ribs on the left side. It's just above the left kidney. Normally it's a small organ, less than half the size of your hand. It's like a large lymph gland. Many of the old blood cells are destroyed within the spleen. All of it's functions are not clear. It may enlarge when a person has a fever or if there is heart failure which may be the situation with your mother. It's importance depends entirely on what's causing it. It can be a factor in some types of anemia and low white blood cell counts.

I presume that the type and degree of anemia that your mother has was such that your doctor felt satisfied that it was unrelated to the enlargement of the spleen. He may also have felt that the enlargement of the spleen was minimal and more likely related to her heart problems. There isn't any way I can give you a definite answer. The only thing you can do is to depend on the doctor's judgment. After all he knows how big the spleen is and how severe the anemia is as well as the rest of the problem, including the severity of the heart disease.

Dear Dr. Lamb — What is a spot on the lung? What causes it? Is it dangerous? We have heard so much about it recently via John Wayne and Johnny Bench on television. One said cancer, the other said it had to be analyzed to determine what caused it. Is it necessary to have an operation if it is determined that there is a spot on the lung?

Dear Reader — A spot on the lung is just a spot on the lung until a better diagnosis is made. Sometimes a spot on the lung represents an old infection of one of the fungus diseases of the lung such as histoplasmosis or coccidioidomycosis. These fungus diseases may leave a spot on the lung after the inflammation is over and the spot may have no important significance. On the other hand, a spot on the lungs may well be cancer. There are differences in the X ray characteristics between some spots that enable a doctor to have a pretty good idea if they are cancer or not, but if there's any question the only way the problem can be solved is by surgical removal of the area and examination. Certainly if a spot is found and there's any question about it, the quicker surgery is achieved the better likelihood of a successful outcome.

Lung cancer is very common in American men. Ninety per cent of all men who have lung cancer smoke cigarettes. It is probably an example of a preventable disease. It may sound strange to say that you can prevent cancer but there are a number of cancers which can be prevented and the large number of lung cancers appears to be a good example. Merely by avoiding smoking cigarettes the incidence of lung cancer can be sharply reduced.

Flu shots urged

Influenza can be devastating for people who already have long- term diseases, especially chronic heart or lung diseases.

There is no agreement about recommending flu vaccination for healthy people. But authorities do agree that older people in general and people with chronic heart or lung disease should receive flu shots and annual boosters. The Public Health Service also recommends the shots for people who have severe diabetes and chronic kidney disease.

Unfortunately, many patients who need flu shots and boosters do not get them. Yet many of these people have direct contact with medical institutions, chest clinics, and emphysema clubs. This year, lung associations across the country are cooperating with public health departments to be sure that people who need flu shots get them.

The flu, which is caused by different types of influenza viruses, can take a considerable toll on a healthy person. People with chronic illness have an even harder time.

When you go out for food and bring it home, you're not giving the family much of a treat. Someone still has to set the table and serve. Then there's that mess to contend with afterwards. Here's a better way. Bring the family into our new Sambo's Restaurant. Have a relaxed, sit-down meal. Let us do the work. And instead of just one or two kinds of food to choose from, Sambo's has over 100 items— for breakfast, lunch, dinner and snacks. It's all made to order, 24 hours a day. So remember: next time, don't take out. Eat out...at our new Sambo's.

Today in U.S. History

On this date in 1956, Britain and France started landing military forces in Egypt to support Israel in fighting with the Egyptians.

In 1605, a British conspirator, Guy Fawkes, was seized as he was about to blow up the House of Lords in London.

In 1872, Susan B. Anthony voted for Ulysses S. Grant for President. Women did not have the vote, and she was fined $100 for illegal voting.

In 1912, Woodrow Wilson was elected president.

In 1930, American novelist Sinclair Lewis was awarded the Nobel Prize.

In 1940, Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected to an unprecedented third term as president.

In 1946, a new career in politics began as John F. Kennedy was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives.

Burglars ram car

Policeman Gary Brown's car was towed away Sunday morning after it was rammed by burglars fleeing from McConnell's Magnavox Home Entertainment Center at Kingsway Plaza Mall. The burglars were later caught in Poplar Bluff. This picture was taken through the hole in the front door broken by the thieves to get into the store.

Nixon hurt by a few says Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President - designate Gerald Ford said today that it was tragic "that the stupid illegal acts of a handful of people" had discredited the Nixon administration.

Ford told a Senate committee examining his qualifications to become vice president that he thought President Nixon could recover from Watergate and finish his second term with a good record.

"I think he can," Ford said.

Ford was closely questioned about his relationship with a former Washington lobbyist, but as he neared the end of his second day as a witness, the senators concentrated more on his views of presidential leadership.

Ford was asked what personal characteristics he thought a president needed. "He has to be a person of great truthfulness and the people have to believe he is truthful," Ford said.

He also said a President must lead by personal example, exhibiting high moral and ethical standards.

He praised Nixon for "a superb job" in foreign affairs, but conceded that the Watergate affair had seriously damaged the President domestically.

Ford said he felt Nixon had nothing to do with the planning and execution of the break-in of Democratic headquarters that sparked the Watergate investigation, but that the President had an immediate need to clarify questions relating to it.

The lobbyist, Robert N. Winter-berger, has written a book which he calls "an insider's view of corruption in Washington." It portrays the author as a close associate of Ford, the House Republican leader.

Ford denied all allegations of wrongdoing in his relations with Winter-berger. At the opening session of his confirmation hearings last week he said he was "duped" by Winter-berger, who had been introduced to him by close friends from Michigan.

Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., chairman of the Senate Rules Committee, asked Ford about his visit to a New York doctor, Arnold Hutschnecker, which was arranged by Winterberger.

Ford said he finally paid one brief visit to Dr. Hutschnecker "in order to get rid of Mr. Winter-berger's persistent request."

"If you knew Mr. Winter-berger, I think you would understand how I finally decided to see the doctor," Ford said.

He said he merely had a conversation with Dr. Hutschnecker about the role of leadership in the American political system.

Ford said Winter-berger brought several cases he was interested in to Ford's attention, but in only one instance did Ford or his staff perform the service requested.

The was to assist a prominent Dutch medical expert to remain in the United States, and, he said, he was primarily persuaded to do so by the recommendations of a number of prominent U.S. doctors.

Ford devoted several minutes to a detailed denial of any connection with the award of a contract for furnishing a federal building in Chicago to a Grand Rapids, Mich., firm.

The committee had before it copies of newspaper stories indicating a link between the contract and Ford's assistance in getting a government job for the official who awarded it.

Much of the questioning by the committee dealt with Ford's qualifications to be President, not just vice president. Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., gave him a chance to expand on a trip to China he made last year with the late Rep. Hale Boggs, D-La., then the House Democratic leader.

TV sets not recovered

3 held for burglary

Three East St. Louis, Ill. men were being held in city jail today for the Sunday morning burglary of McConnell's Magnavox Home Entertainment Center in Kingsway Plaza Mall.

The three were identified as Lawrence Hester, 21, James Charles Madison, 20, and Carl Ervin Williams, 20.

Police said the three backed their car up to the front entrance of the store at 6 a.m. Sunday, broke out the front door and began loading television sets into the car.

The burglar alarm was triggered, police said. But before any squad cars arrived, two policemen, going home after their shift, spotted the burglary in progress.

Officer Gary Brown pulled his car in front of the burglar's car.

Brown leaped out of his car and fired one shot, striking the top of the getaway car.

The other officer, Joe Sebourn, was unable to get off a shot.

Two 19- inch television sets were taken but not recovered, police said. They were valued at $479 and $499. Police said the burglars apparently dumped them somewhere on the way to Poplar Bluff.

The three suspects were arrested at 9 a.m. by Poplar Bluff police.

Police said Hester, Madison and Williams would be turned over to New Madrid County authorities today.

Other arrests announced today include Louis Danny Davis, 24, of 333 Compress Road for careless and imprudent driving; Danny Joe Arwood, 25, of Morley, assault and battery; Bobby Long, 38, of Sikeston, public intoxication and peace disturbance; Sonny Copeland, 26, 506 W. Gladys, careless and imprudent driving; and Larry Ray Marcus, 28, Jon Don Acres, destroying private property and trespassing.

Doniphan girl dies in wreck

A Doniphan girl was killed and 15 persons were injured in nine area traffic accidents over the weekend, the highway patrol announced today.

Donna Hatfield, 16, of Doniphan was fatally injured at 8:30 p.m. Saturday on Highway 160 eight miles west of Doniphan when the driver of the car in which she was riding lost control of the vehicle which ran off the road at a high rate of speed and overturned in a ditch.

The body was taken to Edwards Funeral Home in Doniphan.

Injured in the accident were the driver, Delbert Haywood, 16, of Doniphan, sprained left wrist; Phillip O'Neill, 15, of Fairdealing, scratches; and Sarah Hatfield, 15, of Doniphan cuts and a sprained left arm. All were taken to Ripley County Memorial Hospital in Doniphan.

Stephen Secoy, 18, of East Prairie received minor head cuts in a two- car accident at 9:20 p.m. Saturday on Highway 62 in Miner.

The accident occurred when the Secoy auto, in the process of passing several cars, struck the left side of an eastbound car driven by Leslie Dubose, 26, of St. Louis, who was attempting to make a left turn.

Secoy was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

A one- car accident four miles east of Wyatt on Highway 60 at 2:20 p.m. Saturday resulted in minor injuries to one person.

The patrol said David Hines, 26, of Mound City, Ill., driving at a high rate of speed, lost control of his car which ran off the road and overturned.

A passenger, Ruby Starks, 30, of Cairo, Ill., received injuries to her back and right leg and was taken to PADCO Community Hospital in Cario.

Clifford Flippo, 28, of Sikeston received serious injuries at 10:35 p.m. Saturday on Highway 114 four miles west of Sikeston when his auto, traveling at an excessive rate of speed, ran off the road and struck a tree. Flippo was thrown from the vehicle.

He received broken ribs, cuts and a possible concussion and was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Nellie Ponder, 46, of East Prairie received a back injury at 10:45 a.m. Saturday on Highway 80 in East Prairie when her car ran off the road and struck a utility pole.

She was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Two persons were seriously injured in a one- car accident at 6:15 p.m. Saturday on Route EE five miles west of Marston.

The accident occurred when a car driven by Mary Counts, 29, of Matthews ran off the road at a high rate of speed and struck an embankment.

Mrs. Counts suffered a broken kneecap and her daughter, Mamie Counts, 14, received a serious head cut and a possible concussion. Both were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

David Holley, 17, of Portageville sustained cuts on the forehead at 9:45 a.m. Saturday on Route EE five miles west of Marston when he lost control of his car which ran off the road and overturned.

He was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Two persons were slightly injured at 12:30 p.m. Sunday on Highway 61 two miles north of Steele when a car driven by Edward Outlaw, 52, of Chicago, Ill., rammed into the back of a car driven by Patsy Tingley, 35, of Paris, Ill. The patrol said the Tingley auto had stopped in traffic which had been halted by a previous accident.

Mrs. Tingley received a back injury and Outlaw suffered a cut lip. Both were

McDonald's grand opening

McDonald's Restaurant conducted official grand opening ceremonies at its East Malone Avenue site Saturday with treats for the kids from Ronald McDonald himself. The ribbon- cutting ceremony was unusual in that the ribbon was made from 100 new one- dollar bills taped end to end. The money was given to Mayor Frank Ferrell to be donated to his favorite charity, the Sikeston United Way. From left are: Jerry D. Ambulance law explained by development specialist

"Citizens are more interested, excited, informed and misinformed about ambulance service since the new state ambulance law was passed than they ever were before," says Philip Kelley, area community development specialist for the Delta Center in Portageville.

Senate Bill 57, passed by the 77th General Assembly, is the latest of a series of federal and state laws affecting emergency medical services in the Bootheel, Kelley says, and as a result of the bill, funeral home directors have been forced to review the service they were providing.

"The result of this review seems to be a unanimous decision that the requirements of this new licensing law will make it so expensive to provide ambulance service that they cannot continue in this business," he added in a news release.

There are several reasons why this is true, according to Kelley. In many cases ambulance service has been provided at a financial loss to the funeral home and under the new licensing law, the ambulance vehicle required will be different from vehicles operated by funeral homes.

An additional vehicle will be required, and the additional vehicle cannot be used for other normal business purposes of the funeral home. Also the vehicle will also be required to carry a considerable supply of emergency medical equipment.

"Statistics indicate that ambulances average one emergency trip per 24-hour day for each 10,000 people," says Kelley, "and if this statistic is anywhere near accurate, it is not likely that many funeral homes average more than one call per day and most will make considerably less."

The low frequency of calls makes it impossible to pay for the service out of revenue generated by emergency calls, especially when the Bill 57 also makes new requirements for keeping records and brings previous laws into effect which will also increase costs, he added.

A quick review of the laws affecting ambulance service show that governmental units such as counties, cities, towns and villages may provide ambulance service. Kelley said separate ambulance districts may be formed crossing city or county lines, health centers may contract for ambulance service.

Also, county hospitals, special hospital districts and fire protection districts may provide ambulance services.

In addition to various governmental units, individuals and business firms, such as funeral homes, may provide ambulance service. None of the alternative methods listed previously are mandatory, Kelley said, and they do not require that ambulance service be provided.

"Senate Bill 57 is the first law placing requirements on any private individual, existing business and unit of government that is providing or wants to provide ambulance service to the citizens of Missouri," he said.

Beginning July 1, 1974, Bill 57 will require all ambulance vehicles to be licensed. Attendants riding and driving the ambulances also must be licensed. Like most licensing laws, certain standards must be met to be eligible to obtain a license, Kelley concluded.

Eagleton says the President might resign

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., said he believes President Richard M. Nixon may reach the conclusion that his resignation would be best for the United States.

Eagleton said here Sunday he believed Nixon will resign, in spite of his statements to the contrary, if he concludes he can no longer govern the nation.

Eagleton emphasized, however, that he was not calling for the president's resignation, as several others in Congress have done.

Council meeting will be tonight

Man treated for gunshot wound

Robert Lee Williams of St. Louis was treated at Missouri Delta Community Hospital Saturday night for an apparently accidental gunshot wound, according to police.

Williams told police he had just finished cleaning his pistol at a relative's home on Dixie Street and had put the gun in his pocket when it discharged.

Police said the bullet hit him in the thigh. The gun was reported to be a .25-caliber automatic pistol.

We are saddened by the death of our old houseman, who looked after my mother and father when they got old, Miller Randolph. He died at the age of 94. Of course, in the last few years he had been unable to do anything but he was a good worker and, of course, he was like most of the colored folks, whatever belonged to the white folks also belonged to him and whenever I needed anything that I thought we had he would tell me that he had it at his house and when I was ready for it he would bring it home. We see where he is going to be buried in Sunset Memorial Cemetery with Dotson Funeral Home in charge of arrangements. We will miss Miller, we have missed him the last few years, but he was a good man while he was able to go.

VETERANS BENEFIT FROM SPACE

Chalk up another down-to- earth benefit from space.

Remember the fire that swept the top floor of the Military Personnel Records Center in St. Louis last July? Millions of the fire- and water- damaged records, which previously would have been unsalvagable, are being restored in a space chamber once used in the Mercury and Gemini missions.

The soggy records are trucked in m the Center to McDonnell Douglas Corp. in light, open milk- carton cases. Each case holds about 200 records and 2,000 cases fit at one time into the 14-foot space chamber.

After the chamber is sealed, the drying process begins with a hot- to - cold cycle in which the records are heated to 140 degrees with warm, dry air, then frozen while the space chamber pressure is gradually lowered to 0.088 pounds per square inch (normal air pressure is 15 psi).

The frozen water molecules are squeezed from the documents by the pressure drop and vented from the chamber. A drying cycle takes from four to six minutes and complete drying requires about five days.

It's a small thing for mankind, but of tremendous importance to veterans or their families in seeking to establish eligibility for various government benefits.

NOBODY LIKES TO BE SECOND-BEST, BUT WE'RE GETTING THERE ALL TOO FAST

The United States used to make 76% of the world's automobiles. Now it's 33%.

We produced 47% of the world's steel; now 19%.

Following World War II we built most of the world's merchant ships. Now only 2%.

From first to third as builder of machine tools.

40% of Americans walk in imported shoes.

Whose fault? It's everyone's fault who wants something for nothing or takes something he doesn't earn. That is what is causing exorbitant prices, shoddy quality, disgusted customers. America was built by hard work, with everyone carrying his share. We'd better get back to it fast, while there's still time.

HOW TO RESTORE CONFIDENCE

The tapes and documents President Nixon reluctantly agreed to turn over to Judge John Sirica relate only to nine conversations with a possible bearing on the Watergate cover-up. Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox's staff had been digging into other matters — illegal campaign contributions, the ITT case, political espionage, activities of White House "plumbers" — for which documents in the White House's possession are needed. The administration has given no sign that it intends to make these materials available.

The "compromise" the White House proposed to Cox, and which he rejected, would have required Cox to forego invoking "the judicial process further to compel production of recordings, notes or memoranda regarding private presidential conversations." If Cox had gone along with the deal, he would have been given access to such documentation only if the White House voluntarily disclosed it.

This was unacceptable to Cox, but it was acceptable to Henry Petersen, the Justice Department's criminal division chief, who replaced Cox after Cox's office was abolished. Petersen said immediately after he took over from Cox that the proposed compromise and the restrictions laid down by the White House were O.K. with him. If the administration hadn't responded to public pressure and agreed to surrender the Watergate tapes and documents, Petersen would have done nothing to enforce Judge Sirica's order to obtain them.

How eager will Petersen be to compel the White House to disclose other documents sought by Cox? His willingness to accept the White House compromise makes it impossible for the public to have confidence in his ability to stand up to the White House and conduct a thorough, independent probe.

The record of the Justice Department on Watergate has been uninspiring. The prosecution of the first seven Watergate defendants caused Judge Sirica to complain at the trial about the government's failure to ask relevant questions. The judge declared at one point, "I have not been satisfied that all of the pertinent facts that might be available" were disclosed.

The Ervin committee hearings brought out that Petersen bowed to White House pressure and permitted Maurice Stans to avoid an appearance before the grand jury. Petersen also obeyed a White House order against allowing the grand jury to learn about the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. The Justice Department knew about the burglary two weeks before it informed the judge at Ellsberg's Pentagon Papers trial.

Petersen was miffed when the office of special prosecutor was established. He told the Ervin committee in August, "I resent the appointment of a special prosecutor. Damn it, I think it is a reflection on me and the Department of Justice. We would have broken that case wide open ... That case was snatched out from under us when we had it 90 per cent complete."

Petersen's hurt pride seems to have blinded him to the obvious fact that no one can have confidence in an investigation of the administration by an agency controlled by the administration. Elliot Richardson, William Ruckelshaus, the Senate Republican leadership and others have recognized that and called for re-establishing the office of special prosecutor.

The sooner this is done the sooner confidence will be restored in the administration of justice.

RAIL ROADBEDS ARE IN SAD, SAD SHAPE

So bad is the deterioration of tracks and roadbeds on the nation's railroads that the ride quality of several Amtrak routes has declined to the point where "almost the only people who will ride trains are pass holders, railroad enthusiasts and those with an absolute mental or physical aversion toward air travel."

And presumably one other category — members of the National Association of Railroad Passengers whose chairman, Anthony Haswell, made the above charge at NARP's annual meeting a few weeks ago.

He cited a number of important routes — Chicago - Louisville, Chicago - New Orleans, Chicago - Denver — that are plagued by stretches with "slow orders" limiting trains to speeds of 30 miles an hour or less.

Passenger train schedules over these routes are significantly slower than in years past. In some cases, far slower.

Because of track conditions, much of the money spent on Amtrak is actually wasted, Haswell asserted. If rail passenger service is to attract patronage in competition with other modes of transportation, he added with unassailable logic, well- maintained track and roadbed is absolutely essential.

NARP has announced a campaign to seek "vast improvements" in railroad track and roadbed and calls on the government to require all railroads to maintain their main lines to standards sufficient for smooth, dependable operation.

If tracks were in good enough shape that freight trains could move at 60 m.p.h., the association notes, then passenger trains could be operated at 80. This could be increased to 90 or 100 with improved locomotives with a "feather touch" on the track.

It is interesting that at a time when tracks and roadbeds are in a sad and worsening state there is growing talk of having the government take over the railroads troubles that does not go as far as outright nationalization.

Should this happen, both railroads and erstwhile railroad passengers would be on the same side for a change: They could both blame Uncle Sam for the bumps.

LIGHTS OF CIVILIZATION

Two press items -- one from The New York Times and the other from the Augusta, Georgia, Chronicle- Herald, graphically portray the difference between a nation with little electric energy and a nation where electric power is taken for granted.

The New York Times piece reports what seems to be a virtual collapse of the state-run electric power industry of Cuba. "Programmed blackouts" are the current designation for the rising power failures that threaten to turn Castro's paradise into the equivalent of a dark closet. By contrast, Chronicle - Herald columnist Louis C. Harris writes of the "miracle" that may be seen from almost any elevated position in practically any metropolitan city in the United States. He says, "If the time is after dark, you can see the Miracle of America ... It is reflected in the lights of the city, millions of tiny, glowing orbs, each a symbol of American genius and American affluence."

He refers specifically to the panorama of brilliance he witnessed from a rotating hotel lounge high above the business district of Atlanta, Georgia. He was doubly impressed since he had just attended a roundtable meeting of utility representatives from all over the U.S. which made him realize how far the United States is ahead of other countries in the world in every phase of living. "In lighting alone," he writes, "there is no comparison. A hundred- watt bulb, in most other countries of the world, is as unobtainable as a whale sandwich in the Sahara ... Where electric appliances are concerned, there can scarcely be a comparison from the standpoint of beauty or beauty or efficiency. Nor can any country compare with the U. S. on the cost of electricity or the availability of it."

Those who like to find fault with the U. S. system at least have plenty of light on their subject. Both symbolically and literally, the lights of civilization have a way of going out in countries where freedom has been crushed -- and the state has taken over basic enterprises such as electric power.

WHY OUR COUNTRY'S DEFENSES ARE INSUFFICIENT

The Kremlin has not lost its hostility to our country, nor its desire to be the most powerful nation in the world. Our government thus has a responsibility to the people of our country to make sure that our defenses remain strong against any threat of attack.

But in two specific areas, our government has failed to take practical steps which could not only strengthen our defense capability but also reduce the number of innocent people whose lives would be lost should a nuclear war ever occur.

Firstly, we refused to build an anti- missile system (ABM) around our cities. In 1971, then Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard told a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee that ABM sites "planned for initial deployment in ICBM fields defend some of the most sparsely populated portions of the United States." Both administration officials and Congressional leaders have since then continued this policy, thereby leaving our cities and the millions of civilians in them unprotected.

Secondly, referring to multiple warheads for missiles (MIRV), Packard said "this Administration made a deliberate decision not to improve the accuracy of our MIRV...to what was and is technically feasible." By making this decision, our missiles have been deliberately made less accurate. If war should break out, all we could do is destroy Russian cities, with their civilian populations, rather than attacking the smaller targets which are Soviet bases, missile sites and so on. These policies could be changed if Congress would take the initiative. Letters to Congressmen and to newspapers would help to make clear the danger our country is in. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Prison Still Possible:
Teamsters Chiefs Isolate Hoffa, Pledge 'Fitz,' Nixon's Ally, Full Control to 1971

WASHINGTON-- Ambition is multi- dimensional--- as in the still strange case of that millionaire dabbler in Florida real estate who operates out of a posh Bal Harbour (Fla.) condominium. He's willing to give it all up in exchange for a Detroit local union--- so he can again lead the proletariat. He's the push- up champ of sunny, rather luxurious, Bay Harbor Drive up the road a bit from where the Teamsters Brotherhood high command met last week.

He's, naturally, Jimmy Hoffa, former czar of the trucking fraternity which paid him no heed during their executive board sessions at the Eden Roc Hotel. This collective snub may well be the result of advice of counsel, Charles (Chuck) Colson, who is far more familiar with Key Biscayne than with the old Collins Avenue gold coast. Or it may spring from the distaste of Teamsters general president Frank (Fitz) Fitzsimmons who is in solid control of the Brotherhood.

This is politically meaningful, nationally, even globally. It will provide Dick Nixon with powerful labor support sufficient to neutralize the AFL- CIO's razor- edged slashing of him triggered to force the President to lose his cool publicly.

Only the hand of God, with whom Jimmy Hoffa consistently confuses himself, can remove Fitz from the general presidency of the Brotherhood, which has some 900 strategically placed locals. But Hoffa is pushing--- so hard that some of his enemies inside the union may decide to let their old chief push himself right back into prison.

Thus far the Teamsters leaders, almost unanimously Pro- Nixon, haven't warred on Jimmy. They play the game by the old rules. They have kept Mrs. James Hoffa on as $48,000- a- year director of the Ladies Auxiliary of their fairly potent political operation known as DRIVE (Democrat, Republican, Independent Voter Education). Plus expenses. And Hoffa's bright son, a lawyer, still has some Teamsters clients. So with Hoffa's $1.2 million net lump sum pension, the Hoffas aren't exactly in the market for a tin-cup franchise on some busy street corner.

Virtually unnoticed, however, has been Hoffa's sworn testimony during a pre-trial deposition in a New England lawsuit. In Boston recently, he stated under oath that Chuck Colson, the President's intimate of intimates, was responsible for Dick Nixon's banning Hoffa from participating "directly or indirectly" in the management of any part of the labor movement when Mr. Nixon commuted his 13- year prison sentence in December 1971.

Further Hoffa, under oath, said that he first learned of the presidential condition that he could not get back into labor until March 6, 1980, after he was out of prison.

This conflicts directly with what Fitzsimmons has said publicly.

"He (Hoffa) knew the restrictions before he walked out of prison," said Fitz. "You can rest assured about that."

Fitz also said that Hoffa, his son and his attorney were fully aware of the conditions set by the President.

All this information is somewhere behind the Justice Dept.'s whirling revolving doors. Reportedly as soon as the political dust settles in the department both sides will be questioned. If Fitzsimmons can prove his case, Hoffa will have difficulty proving he hasn't perjured himself under oath.

There's a Grecian tragic-theater aura over the death struggle between these two men-- one, Hoffa, determined to recapture the fantastically powerful Teamsters union which can control the nation's transport system, and the other, Fitz, newly arrived at power, anguished over constant assaults as he attempts to pull his union into the 21st century. No angel, Fitz. But there now are many in industry and labor who want to see him given an even break in his "rehabilitation operation" of this mighty industrial and political juggernaut.

No one pooh- poohs or disdains Hoffa's charisma or Machiavellian skill. Nor, however, do the Teamsters leaders forget Hoffa's ties with old friends in what authorities now call the Tramunti (Luchese- Tony Ducks Corallo) organization.

These Teamsters chiefs know well their political migraine headaches--- the battle with the Farm Workers' leader Cesar Chavez and his clerical allies; the series of Justice Dept. and Internal Revenue probes into the Chicago- based Central States $1.4 billion pension fund; the shadiness of old real estate and corporate deals and loans in California, Nevada and New Mexico, just to mention a few. For the most part, though, they're out of the limelight and in the sun. That's where they want to stay.

So the Teamsters 1976 own presidential campaign has started. Recently in Orlando, Fla., the union's Southern Conference voted unanimously to endorse Fitz for reelection. Further, during a Teamsters Western Conference parley, its director, national first vice-president Einar Mohn said to Fitz: "You've got as loyal a group of Teamsters in the West as anywhere in the country. They'll support you and we'll be there at the '76 convention to support you."

At this session, Fitz listened stone- faced as even the 79-year- old former Teamsters president, Dave Beck, told him he was greater than any predecessor. There also are powerful Teamsters in New York and Chicago--- the Eastern and Central States Conferences--- who loathe Hoffa.

So it does appear that Dick Nixon's allies will control the big brotherhood come 1976. So from now to then, as Chuck Colson undoubtedly has told Dick Nixon, they'll be mighty handy fellows to have around. Hoffa can always release his energy by burying himself in his Florida real estate.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Taxpayers Ripped Off

WASHINGTON-- President Nixon's people tried to stick the taxpayers, apparently, for every possible petty bill at his estate in San Clemente, Calif., and Key Biscayne, Fla.

We have gone through a stack of bills and memos, never intended to be read outside the presidential circle. These show the taxpayers were charged for everything from stamping his golf tees with the presidential logo to furnishing his private San Clemente restroom with his favorite soap.

The usual explanation out of the White House has been that the government pays for renovations involving the President's security. The documents in our possession, however, show that the taxpayers were soaked for dozens of improvements never requested by the Secret Service.

This has also been established by Rep. Jack Brooks, D- Tex., after a thorough investigation by his House Government Operations subcommittee.

SMOKY FIREPLACE

The President apparently complained, for example, about the fireplace smoking in his den. The problem was turned over to his attorney, Herbert Kalmbach, who squawked to the contractor.

Warren B. Sturtevant, the contractor, hustled over to the San Clemente retreat and personally lit fires in the presidential fireplace, he reported, "on January 4th, 1971, the day before the President arrived and again on January 18th, after he had left. Both times the fireplace worked properly.

"I also understand that there were only two occasions out of about 10 possible times used where there was a smoking problem. My conclusion is that on the two occasions when the fireplace did smoke there must have been a different wind condition that caused a down draft." He recommended installing an exhaust fan.

The Secret Service at first resisted paying for the fan until Kalmbach's secretary, Marilyn Parent, had a meaningful talk with the agent in charge. She reported afterward to Sturtevant:

'SECURITY PURPOSES'

"Ken Iacovone informed me that SS would pay for the installation of the fireplace fan after I informed him that it definitely was placed for security purposes and how would he like it if you know who was asphyxiated because there was a certain wind condition which caused the draft to come downwards and caused the smoke to come into the room. He finally agreed with me." Cost to the taxpayers: $388.78.

The Secret Service was also persuaded to restore Pat Nixon's favorite gazebo, although it had been rejected as a security outpost. The First Lady's social secretary, Constance Stuart, explained the problem in a February 15, 1971, memo to Mrs. Nixon.

"I've looked into the matter of the restoration of the gazebo at San Clemente," Ms. Stuart reported. "The gazebo in question is the one closest to the ocean overlooking the point and it evidently is in sad need of repair.

"The Secret Service will not be taking this gazebo over as one of the posts. They would like to place some small electronic scanning (sic) devices in an already existing cabinet....

'IN GOOD TASTE'

"The gazebo would be restored to its original condition....I have been assured this work would be done in good taste and that the ultimate result would be as close to the original as possible."

The First Lady scratched an "OK" to this proposal and Ms. Stuart referred it to the General Service Administration's special projects officer, John F. Galuardi.

"Jack," she noted. "As you can see PN has OK'd the work."

An earlier June 30, 1969, report to the White House on the San Clemente complex states: "Mr. Galuardi has already informed you that he would have a carpenter, electrician, plumber, and an air conditioning- refrigeration mechanic on hand at all times, with a total force of twenty various craftsmen available on call. These people will wear the regular GSA green uniform.

"He has also made plans to have a day maid in a white uniform and a sufficient number of cleaners in grey uniform and black bow tie to furnish cleaning on a 24- hour basis. Linen towels, the preferred soap, and Scott toilet tissue will be provided in the President's restroom....

FRESH FLOWERS

"Arrangements have also been made for a florist to provide freshly cut flowers daily in all offices of the Administration Building." Up to June 30, 1968, according to the financial statements, the taxpayers laid out $4,900 for cut flowers and plants. Of this, $581 was spent on flowers for the President's residence.

At Key Biscayne, the taxpayers have paid for fixtures in the homes not only of the President but also his friend, Bebe Rebozo, next door. One work sheet calls for a "booster transformer" for "the existing kitchen...and for the existing air conditioning and Sauna Bath" at the Rebozo residence.

Special helipad and docking equipment was also requested by the Secret Service for the Coco Lobo, a boat owned by Rebozo.

Dozens of other miscellaneous items, including an ice machine that makes square ice because the President "does not like ice cube s with holes in them,' were also billed to the taxpayers.

A White House spokesman complained that the documents were part of a "partisan, unethical" campaign to embarrass the President. The spokesman said that the Secret Service had gone ahead with plans to renovate the San Clemente gazebo before Mrs. Nixon was consulted.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — As the end of the year draws nearer, and abolishment of low-numberd license plates given to many favored politicans and their friends seems likely, Gov. Christopher S. Bond finds himself in a political hornet's nest.

He has vowed to carry out his campaign pledge and do away with special favors. The Honorary Colonel status given to Democratic party bigwigs was eliminated immediately— there were no fancy uniforms at the young Republican's inauguration in January.

Bond planned to retire the license plates to attics, just as the uniforms, but last December the outgoing Democratic administration shifted some extra employes to the Revenue Department's license issuance section and nearly 10,000 holders of the special plates were able to renew them for another year.

Now, as the days for the three and four-digit plates dwindle, Bond finds a flood of mail, a court suit and newspaper editorials on the subject.

A top elected Democrat says "it's going to be a hot issue" for Bond, "he's getting a lot of heat ... a third of the plates are held by Republicans."

Hundreds of letters have hit the governor's office and Revenue Department. A man from Poplar Bluff wrote:

"I am now past 70 with just a few years left to live and it would make an old man very happy if I could still retain my old number."

Some motorists say they got their low-numbered plates as a wedding gift, or that it's been in the family for 30 years or more, or that it matches their telephone number or house address.

Some say they have been Republicans all their lives and with them the plates are sentimental, not political.

Such is the case with Robert Dallmeyer, Jefferson City businessman and former Cole County Republican chairman. His father had number 28 license certificate even before license plates were issued for vehicles. Plate No. 28 has become not only a part of his auto, but a family heirloom.

But these cases are not typical, said Alan Woods, Bond's top aide. He said during the last 28 years of Democratic administrations the plates have become a symbol of favoritism and abuse, similar to favors granted through the patronage system.

The plates, up to 9999, have been dispensed by governors to their cronies and some have been taken away from politicans who fell out of favor. Some legislators considered it important to get a lower number than their colleagues.

The four digits are prestigious, but the three digits even more so. And having a two digit plate usually means you really had to know someone.

The late Gov. John Dalton once told a reporter:

"They cause me more trouble than anything ... I'm sure I could have sold them for $1,000 apiece. You could steal a million dollars from the state and if someone knew about it and had a low license, he wouldn't say a thing."

While the holders of low-numberd plates want them mostly just to show off, former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes declined to use his No. 1 plate, saying it was "too conspicious ... makes other drivers stare. You fell like something in a zoo."

The six elected state officials can have numbers 1 through 6 for their official cars and also the same numbers for their own autos. Bond has used the governor's cadillac only a few times and has decided to have it sold at auction. He has not picked up his personal plate No. 1 from the revenue department.

Some 200 other holders of low numbers also have not renewed them this year and the plates were recently destroyed.

A class action suit filed in Cole County Circuit Court Oct. 11, by Mr. and Mrs. John Dyke of Montgomery City, seeks a court order to require Spradling to re-issue their number 1248, which they have had since 1948. They cite a section of state law they say provides for permanent retention of plates for non-commercial vehicles.

Ann Landers

Reader asks if watch pig is smarter than watchdog

Dear Ann Landers: I have been "going with" I mean mostly talking to him on the phone. (My phone bills have kept me broke.) Ed gets out here only once every sixty days. We met twice in Kansas which is about halfway. I am 24, divorced, with one child.

For a while Ed sent me postcards. I have been phoning him every weekend all over the country. I write him a long letter every day. Two weeks ago I was supposed to phone him in Detroit. I called at exactly the time he suggested. He said he couldn't talk to me because he was "in a meeting." He asked me to call him the next night, same time, so I did.

Ed answered the phone. I started to speak but he tried to disguise his voice, and said, "You have the wrong room." I yelled, "Ed, this sounds like YOU." He replied, "It's not me. I'm not here."

Ann, that was ten days ago and I haven't heard from him since. What do you think? --Completely Baffled

Dear Baff: I think when a men tells you he's not there, you ought to take his word for it. And don't throw out any more money on long- distance telephone calls. You've been permanently disconnected.

Dear Ann Landers: We live in an area that has had several break-ins. My wife asked me to buy a watchdog. I've heard that pigs are smarter that dogs and I'd like to try a watch-pig. Have you ever heard of this? Do you think my neighbors would mind? --Tallahassee Reader.

Dear Tal.: I don't know where you got the idea that pigs are smarter than dogs but I won't argue the point. Let's assume that a smart pig IS smarter than a dumb dog, there are zoning laws that say you can't keep certain animals in residential areas. (I learned this when a reader wrote to complain about a neighbor who kept a Shetland pony in the kitchen and an alligator in the bathtub.) Personally, I'd rather hear "bow wow" around the house than "oink oink." Check the law before you go hog wild.

Dear Ann Landers: Should a woman who inherits money after she has been married a few years handle it herself or should this money be shared with her husband? My inheritance has created so much trouble between my husband and me that I wish to heaven I had never seen it.

I want to give a few sizable gifts to the charities I beleive in. My husband has asked me to hand the money over to him for "investments." When I refused we got into an argument and he hasn't spoken to me for two days. Finally, I told him I believe I have the right to decide what happens to the money that was left to me. He said, "It is not done that way in compatible families." What about it, Ann? You seem to have a compatible family. ---Mi$erable $ally

Dear $ally: True, but we have no inherited money. In my opinion you should handle your inheritance as you wish and your husband should forget about it.

Confidential to Teeth On Edge And Going Berserk: You can't divorce a woman you've been married to for 35 years because she moves her lips when she reads. Find out what is REALLY bothering you and deal with the problem in a mature, rational manner.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism -- Hope And Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stanped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

Dr. White criticizes media views on diets

By BOB MONTGOMERY
Area Dairy Specialist

A "perfect environment for nonsense" is provided in America by the communications media, says Dr. Philip L. White, secretary of the American Medical Association's Council on Foods and Nutrition.

Dr. White is, of course, talking about nutritional nonsense. And he exmpasizes that radio and television, especially, are constantly promoting the views of food faddists without regard to whether their information has a basis in scientific fact or not.

In an article in the October issue of Nutrition News, a four- times- a - year bulletin for nutrition educators published by National Dairy Council, Dr. White said:

"Why is nutrition nonsense so lucrative a non-profession? Why are we faced with one bad diet book after another? How can fallacious authors rise to national prominence as on fatty clouds almost overnight, Why? Because the media of mass communications ignore peer review and provide tailor-made megaphones for anything sensational.

"The media, especially radio and television, are so hungry for controversial or 'different' viewpoints (to stimulate audience interest) they seem to seek out those who march to a different drum. The enormous number of talk shows create a talent demand that exceeds the supply.

"Why do the media permit Hollywood personalities to spread their foolish notions about health foods? Perhaps it's because after their umpteenth time around the talk show circuit, nutrition nonsense is all they have to talk about. They are invited back because somebody must fill the chairs on stage. The mass media does provide the perfect environment for nonsense."

In his article, one of Dr. White's main points is that science benefits from peer review – the process by which a scientist's report is reviewed by other scientists to see if his research has been valid and his conclusions or hypothesis reasonable. As Dr. White suggests, no such review is involved when the food faddist presents his ideas to the public, nor do most newspapers or other media require it.

One has to be encouraged, though, by the great increase in the number of newspaper and magazine science writers who do know science and do not relay nonsense to the public. One problem, of course, is the question, "is information news?" It is news that sells newspapers, and sensationalism and controversy build ratings for radio and television. And Americans have always had some interest in the medicine show, in the showman-quack.

"So I predict food faddism and nutritional misinformation will be around for awhile. But people should guard against swallowing nonsense and rely instead on sources of factual information rather than opinion or notions. It is, after all, our own health we want to protect."

Brands missing; but hunger is no real threat

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Consumers may find some of their favorite brands missing from supermarket shelves these days, but no one is likely to go hungry because of food shortages.

That's the finding of an Associated Press survey of major retailers across the country.

Generally, the larger chains are in better shape than smaller companies which report some problems finding specific items—particularly fresh fruit and vegetables.

There are scattered shortages of some items—parsley is hard to find in Chicago, for example, and there's no pork loin at an Atlanta chain—but most things are available.

Retailers say the situation really depends on what happens after the expiration of the 60-day price freeze that President Nixon announced on June 13.

Officials of the Cost of Living Council said on Thursday that they wanted to remove food price controls as soon as possible. They denied, however, that the freeze was causing chaos in the industry.

At the same time, the administration announced new controls on the export of 41 agricultural items.

Grandmother is new doctor

NEWTOWN, Conn. (AMA News Features) — She's 51 years old and a grandmother -- and a brand- new doctor interning at St. Vincent's Hospital in nearby Bridgeport.

"You can do anything you want to do if you want it badly enough," says Dr. Barbara Jean Gretsch.

When Dr. Gretsch got her MD degree last May from the Medical College of Pennsylvania, it fulfilled a dream she had had since childhood in Louisville, Ky., where she lived near the University of Louisville medical school. She made it through pre- med school, but lack of money halted her education in the early 1940s. She became a WAC officer in the Army, then married Richard Gretsch at the end of World War II.

Then came eight children. When the youngest, Molly, now 11, was four years old, Dr. Gretsch decided to try and realize what most people would surely call an impossible dream. Officials at one university told her it not only was impossible, it was "absolutely, utterly impossible." But she persisted, and took several years of college work prior to applying to medical school.

Knowing her applications, if mailed, would likely go right into the wastebasket, Mrs. Gretsch personally visited a number of East Coast medical schools.

"They were always polite, but when I told them what I was there for they also were very firm in telling me that I was rejected," she says.

Finally, she visited the Medical College of Pennsylvania, then known as Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania. "By some miracle, I was accepted."

On many weekends, while her classmates studied, Mrs. Gretsch drove about 400 miles to be with her family.

The energetic grandmother hopes to open a family practice and work for at least 20 years. This is probably about as long as many younger women physicians practice before they quit to raise families, Dr. Gretsch said.

As for mature people, especially women, trying medical school, she says:

"I think in terms of age 40. To my mind this is the group that is prime. By that age, there has been an opportunity to settle back and look at life a little. There has been an opportunity to taste of other wines and find them wanting. Marriage is no longer new. Children are no longer babes. If the dedication is there, with the courage to face the work required, bolstered by the ability to learn, these people should be considered very seriously."

Book Review

THE NATURAL BABY FOOD COOKBOOK
by Margaret Elizabeth Kenda and Phyllis S. Williams
Avon 14787/$1.95
168 pp.

According to Margaret Kenda and Phyllis Williams, authors of Avon's THE NATURAL BABYFOOD COOKBOOK, high levels of salt, sugar, undigestible starch, emulsifiers, color fixatives, and until recently, MSG, are some of the unnecessary, expensive, and possibly harmful ingredients in the 864 jars of prepared baby food the average baby consumes in thee first 18 months of his life. The authors' cookbook offers a wealth of inexpensive, nutritious, delicious, and easy to fix alternatives to the prepared baby food trap, including everything from baby and junior foods, finger foods, teething biscuits, party dishes, special recipes for the sick and allergic child, along with meal planning charts, nutrition information, and a bibliography of reference works.

Club offers dogwoods

NEW MADRID-- New Madrid Woman's Club is selling flowering dogwood trees for the 11th straight year. To place an order, call or come by the home of Mrs. Bud Hartwell, 1215 Scott St., phone number 748-5971. Trees are three to four feet tall and come in white and pink.

This is not a money making project for the club but a city beautification project. Because of the late warm weather, the tree shipment was delayed.

The best time to plant the trees is after the first freeze.

Girl tells of sexual involvement with officers

By DOUG STONE
Associated Press Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)— She would wave and get policemen to stop their cars, talk a little and then sometimes have sex with them, says a teen- age blonde. "They were real sweet to me," she adds.

Charlotte Tyler, 19, of Paris, Ark., told reporters Sunday of sexual involvement with officers, not only in Memphis, but also in Arkansas and Missouri.

"I'm not ashamed about nothing," she said.

Police Director Jay W. Hubbard said hours of polygraph tests confirmed the young woman's allegations, "including some of the more serious ones."

Asked how many officers she'd been involved with in Memphis after her arrival Sept. 1, she said, "I do not want to state it. No offense."

Police sources have said that up to 200 officers on the 1,100 man force may be involved, but Hubbard has said he believes it is more like 20.

Mrs. Tyler allowed reporters, minus cameras and recorders, into her police-acquired motel suite, where officers said they had been questioning her for three days. She was flanked by a priest, two matrons and investigators. She said she is divorced and the mother of a 2- year- old daughter being cared for by her parents.

Inspector H. H. Leatherwood, head of the Internal Affairs Bureau, said Mrs. Tyler gave names of officers and took lie detector tests after saying she wanted to assist police in answering questions.

Mrs. Tyler said she would like to get on a police department and work in the vice squad. "I bet I know more about it that a lot of people," she said.

She declined to say whether she had sexual encounters in police stations, where Leatherwood said she sometimes was around at roll call. Mrs. Tyler responded to a question, "In squad cars? Some."

She said she likes officers because "they are well trained, they know their work, they are good people."

Her activities were not for money, she said, althought it was her arrest Oct. 8 on a charge of soliciting that led to the investigation. At the time of a required medical examination, police said she was found to have gonorrhea and to have remakred to the vice squad that a lot of policemen must have it too.

ECOLOGY GUIDELINES FOR BULLDOZERS

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — Even the bulldozer operators are getting, and perhaps even absorbing, the ecology message on Long Island.

The Nassau-Suffolk Contractors Assn. has drawn up guidelines for construction workers including:

— Disturb only those trees, shrubs, topsoil and ground cover necessary.

— Protect natural surface drainage.

— Limit noise and unsightliness.

— Notify authorites if potential environmental damage seems imminent.

Time calls on Nixon to resign

NEW YORK (AP) — Time magazine says "Richard Nixon and the nation have passed a tragic point of no return" and has called on the President to resign.

Printing its first editorial since it began publication 50 years ago, the weekly news-magazine said Sunday that Nixon "has irredeemably lost his moral authority, the confidence of most of the country and, therefore, his ability to govern effectively."

The Time editorial charged that, under Nixon, the White House has become "pervaded by an atmosphere of aggressive amorality — amorality almost raised to a creed."

Contending there was now a "hopeless miasma of deceit and suspicion" surrounding the administration, the magazine declared: "The nightmare of uncertainty must be ended. A fresh start must be made."

Time said that, even if Nixon were impeached, brought to trial in the Senate and acquitted, "the process would leave him and the country devastated."

New system needs fewer representatives

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A proposal calling for the substitution of a single Democratic party representative from wards and townships for the current committeeman and committeewoman setup has received support from Donald C. Anton, chairman of the St. Louis County Democratic Committee.

At a weekend hearing before a state subcommittee considering revisions in the constitution and bylaws of the Missouri Democratic Committee, Anton said too many committeemen and committeewomen have fought with one another in the past, causing divisions within the state party.

He said a single ward or township representative would eliminate such divisiveness.

The state committee has been hearing testimony from party leaders in anticipation of new rules on the selection of delegates to national conventions from the party's national committee.

Both Anton and Paul M. Berra, chairman of the St. Louis Democratic Committee, testified in favor of a Missouri presidential primary as a means of easing disputes arising during the selection of party delegates.

THE HEATING FUEL SHORTAGE:

WHERE WE SET OUR THERMOSTATS WILL DETERMINE HOW SEVERE IT WILL BE

A heating fuel shortage of as much as 10% has been forecast for this winter. Oil, gas, and electricity will all be involved.

You don't like it. We don't like it. But the fact is, there just isn't going to be enough heating fuel to go around.

This may cause some very unpleasant things to happen. Schools closing and kids missing their classes. Businesses closing and workers missing paychecks. Brownouts by electric utilities.

But there is something we can all do to ease the situation.

CONSERVATION: IT HELPED BEAT THE GASOLINE SHORTAGE LAST SUMMER

If we all use a little less, there'll be more for us all. Last summer was a case in point.

The forecast was for a shortage of gasoline based on normal usage. Standard and other oil companies urged people to conserve gasoline. And they responded by using less gasoline so that very few communities suffered severe run-outs. In fact, most people felt nothing more than a minor inconvenience.

YOUR THERMOSTAT IS THE KEY TO HEATING FUEL CONSERVATION THIS WINTER

If everyone would dial down their thermostat this winter, it could ease the shortage tremendously. For example, if you dial down a few degrees to a daytime setting of not more than 70°, you can conserve a substantial amount of heating fuel over the year. That's true whether you use oil, gas or electricity.

And if you dial down another 5° overnight – to a setting of 65° – you can conserve even more.

If you go away for the weekend, remember to dial down the thermostat to not more than 55°, so you don't waste fuel by overheating an empty house.

We're asking all Standard employees to dial down both at work and at home. We are asking all businesses and government to dial down, too. And we're asking you to do the same. It's a job for all of us because it's important to all of us.

For a booklet on additional ways to conserve heating fuel, contact your Standard Heating Fuel man, or write: Heating Fuel Conservation, Standard Oil, MC-1506, P.O. Box 6110A, Chicago, Illinois 60680.

WHAT IS CAUSING THE SHORTAGE

The international crude oil situation has been bad right along, and recent developments in the Mid-East have made it even worse.

When one source of crude supply tightens up, it puts extra burdens not only on other crude sources, but on the availability of foreign refined products for import, as well.

U.S. refineries probably won't be able to run at capacity this winter because they won't have the available crude oil necessary to maintain full production. This affects not only people who heat with oil, but electric power as well, since many utilities burn oil to generate electricity.

WHAT STANDARD OIL IS DOING TO EASE THE SHORTAGE

For months now, we've been making as much heating oil as we could. We have made a concerted effort to encourage our customers to fill their storage. We have built maximum inventories at our bulk plants and terminals. We offered advice on conservation. All of this was done so that we could be in better shape to take care of our customers.

Further, we implemented a voluntary allocation plan to our agents and dealers based on previous years' usage. We also have implemented the government's allocation plan.

IT'S UP TO ALL OF US

Just a little heating fuel conserved per home per week can make the difference between a severe shortage and a mild one. Let's all dial down that thermostat and beat this thing together.

Dr. Long to be featured speaker

Walker Long

Dr. Walker J. Long of Poplar Bluff, president of the Missouri Optometric Association, will be the featured speaker at a meeting of the Southeast Missouri Optometic Society Saturday at Ramada Inn, Highway 62 East, according to Dr. Terry Swinger, president of the SeMo group.

Dr. Long will be accompanied by Dr. Ronald Knox of St. Louis, Missouri Optometric Society president-elect, and Robert E. Marsh of Jefferson City, MOA executive director.

Dr. Long, a native of Bloomfield, attended preoptometry school for two years at Southwest Missouri State University in Springfield before earning his doctor of optometry degree from Southern College of Optometry at Memphis, Tenn., in 1947.

He established his practice in Poplar Bluff in 1948 where he is presently associated with his son, Dr. Jerry Long.

Dr. Long is a member of the American Optometric Association, Missouri Optometric Association and the Southeast Missouri Optometric Society. He has served the state organization in a number of capacities and was elected to the board of trustees in 1966. He and his wife Lettye are parents of four children.

Low-moisture beans not getting premium

JEFFERSON CITY — "When it looked like the long, wet fall would result in the production of a lot of high-moisture soybeans, many grain elevators increased their discounts for high moisture, without paying a corresponding premium for low-moisture beans," charges C. R. "Dick" Johnston, president of the Missouri Farm Bureau.

"A short time ago," he says, "the elevators raised their discount rates to discourage farmers from bringing in high-moisture beans. This was justified – at least partly -- because the possibility of a fuel shortage would have compounded their grain-drying difficulties.

"Now, with a couple of weeks of dry weather behind us, we're facing a different situation," Johnsoton asserts. "What is happening now is that many farmers are bringing in large quantities of low-moisture grains and are being paid no premium for it. Since farmers are docked for selling beans with more than 13.5 percent moisture content, we believe they should be paid more for beans with less moisture."

Johnston states that many elevators will pay a low price to a farmer who sells them high-moisture beans, then buy low-moisture beans from other farmers without paying them a premium. Then, they blend to reach the 13.5 percent optimum, and sell the beans at a good price.

"While we don't quarrel with a reasonable dock for high moisture," Johnston says, we believe farmers with low-moisture beans should be paid an equivalent premium. If some elevators won't adjust their rates, I would encourage farmer to shop around for better prices, because some elevators are better to do business with than others.

Bush calls for change in image

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The current image of the Republican party must be changed, said GOP National Chairman George Bush here this weekend, but not because of the Watergate scandal.

"We have an image problem because we're somehow the rich, the exclusive, the closed party," Bush told Republican workers and officials. He said the party wanted more ethnic candidates to "put to lie this myth of exclusiveness."

Speaking at a "New Majority Workshop" sponsored by the Republican National Committee, Bush said he was confident the party will emerge unharmed from the Watergate scandal.

"A person who tries to run against a Republican candidate on the basis of scandal is going to get beaten," he warned. "We haven't seen any erosion yet. People are sorting out the party from the allegations that have been made. The Voters are fair."

Watergate has turned many Americans away from politics, he said, adding that the reaction appears to be hurting the Democrats more than the GOP.

Cage tourney to semi-finals

By BILL HARRISON

BELL CITY — First round play in the Junior Varsity tournament was completed here Saturday with Bloomfield getting by Puxico 56-40 and Kelly whipping Oran 51-43.

In the opening game the Kelly Hawks used a fast moving offense and pressure defense to overcome a 23-20 halftime lead by the Eagles of Joe Scott and move into the semi- finals Monday night against the Advance Hornets.

The taller Oran Eagles controlled the boards in the first period to take the 11-8 lead but Kelly used their defensive tactics to hold the Eagles back in the second period. Both team put 12 points on the scoreboard in the period.

After intermission the Hawks press forced the Eagles into several floor mistakes and bad passes and outscored their opponent 19-10 in the quarter to pull the game out of the fire. Kelly played defense the last period holding the Eagles to 10 points while netting 12 for themselves. Johnson, Schlosser, and Hulshof hit 15, 13, 14 respectively for the Hawks. Anderson hit 12 for Oran.

Coach Don Metz of the Bloomfield Wildcats used his teams height advantage to take care of the Puxico Indians to go against Scott Central Monday night.

The Cats controlled the boards and jumped off to a fast 16-8 first period lead and pressed the small guards of the Indians into bad passes the rest of the game to keep the lead safe. Jackson hit 20 points to lead the Wildcats to victory and Hancock and Campbell hit 16 apiece for the Indians.

Scoring:

KELLY

Johnson 15, Romanowski 4, Schlosser 12, Hulshof 14, McElmurry 6.

ORAN

Anderson 12, Campbell 10, Dirnberter 9, Taylor 8, Burlison 2, Senciboy 2.

Coach predicts Mizzou defeat

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Third-ranked Oklahoma will beat 12th-ranked Missouri in their Big Eight Conference football showdown Saturday.

That's the opinion of Coach Vince Gibson of Kansas State, who has a pretty fair background for basing his appraisal.

Only last Saturday, Kansas State, after giving Missouri a scare, was thoroughly thrashed by the Tigers 31-7. A week earlier, the Wildcats, without frightening Oklahoma in the least, were soundly trampled by the Sooners 56-14.

"Oklahoma is a better football team than Missouri," Gibson said, "but Missouri will play them close."

The Sooner-Tiger struggle, to be played at Columbia, Mo., will headline another big Saturday in Big Eight football. Nebraska, 13th ranked, is at home against Iowa State. Colorado, ranked No. 17, invades Kansas, and Kansas State travels to Oklahoma State.

Oklahoma tightened its grip on first place in the league race last weekend by overcoming Iowa State 34-17, giving the Sooners a 3-0 conference record and a 6-0-1 mark over-all. Missouri, 3-1 and 7-1, kept hot on the Sooners' heels with its come-from-behind decision over the Wildcats.

Nebraska, 2-1-1 and 6-1-1, remained hopeful by routing Colorado 28-16. Kansas, 2-1-1 and 52-1, likewise, clung to its hopes by surviving a late field goal attempt by Oklahoma State and tying the Cowboys 10-10.

Kansas State, 1-3 and 4-4, grabbed a 7-0 lead over Missouri in the second quarter and completely outclassed the Tigers until Ray Bybee got off a 65-yard run to set up the tying tally. After the Bengals got even on John Cherry's fiveyard pass to John Kelsey, the complexion changed completely in favor of the Tigers.

"They came up with the big play when they had to have it, every critical time," said Gibson.

Missouri Cocah Al Onofrio said Bybee's run "was the thing that broke the game for us. That one brought us back."

The Sooners trailed Iowa State, 0-4 and 2-5, by 17-7 but Steve Davis threw two touchdown passes and Joe Washington tallied twice, once on a 30-yard run. Washington ran for 136 yards.

Nebraska, scoring 14 points in each of the first two quarters, picked up two touchdowns on Dave Humm's passes and the others on runs of one and nine yards by Tony Davis. Humm's pitches were for 10 yards to Brent Longwell and 21 yards to Frosty Anderson.

Colorado was behind 28-3 at the half but came back with touchdowns on a five-yard run by Bo Matthews and a 73-yard pass from Billy Waddy to David Williams. The Buffs are 2-2 and 5-3.

Cameras working despite problems

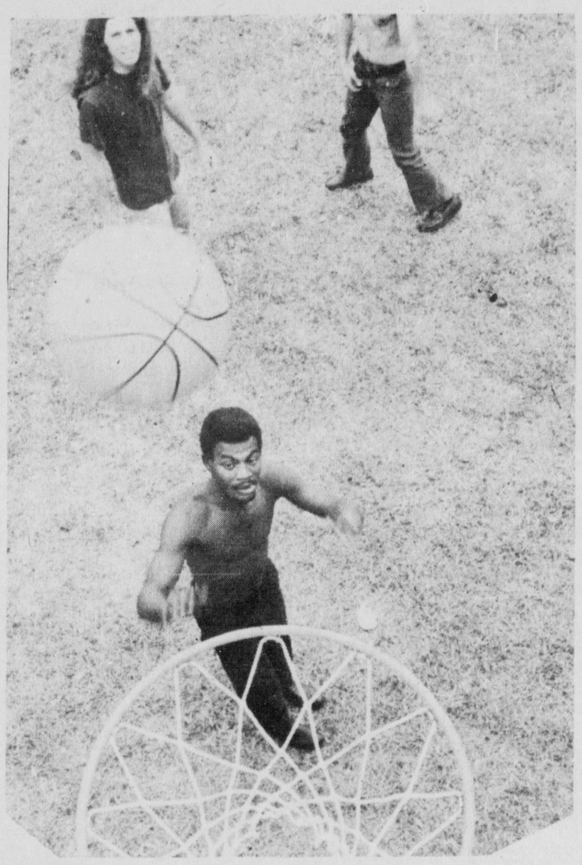

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Mariner 10 was flashing pictures to earth today despite a problem with a heating system for its cameras, said flight controllers at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

"We still can't turn on the heating devices for the cameras; but even though they're running cold, they are working within the design limits," a spokesman said Sunday. The devices are used to stabilize heat differences between the cameras and the rest of the spacecraft.

Officials said more than 350 pictures of the earth and moon had been transmitted during the weekend. The pictures were bright and clear, they said.

Mariner 10 is scheduled to fly within 3,300 miles of Venus on Feb. 5, 1974, and use the gravity of Venus to direct the craft on to Mercury. The craft is expected to fly within 620 miles of Mercury on March 29, 1974.

Some intrusions vital to safety

KANSAS CITY (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley said here Sunday night that "any law enforcement agency's activities are an intrusion on some individual's total freedom."

"Any arrest is an intrusion, but a necessary one, to preserve the rights of individuals who are victims of those who threaten the safety and property of others," Kelley said.

The FBI chief was one of four guests appearing before some 550 persons at the Kansas City Press Club's annual Griddle Show. It being a homecoming of sorts to the city where he was police chief for 12 years, Kelley was not pushed onto the griddle by the panel as were the other guests—Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan, Rep. Jerry Litton, D-Mo, and Joseph D. McNamara, the former New York police veteran who just last week succeeded Kelley as Kansas City police chief.

Kelley, who received a standing ovation, expressed hope the FBI's new policy of "openness" would give an improved image of the bureau. "We feel that if the people know the truth, they will continue to give us their trust and support," he said.

The FBI, he said, had been falsely accused of usurping its authority. "I want to assure you the FBI is not violating civil liberties. We do not compile political dossiers. We do not violate constitutional procedures," he said.

Dole, former chairman of the Republican National Committee, said there are "enough questions not answered" about Watergate and related matters that warrant an investigation into whether impeachment proceedings should be undertaken against the President.

But he said, "I haven't lost my faith in the President yet," and therefore was not calling for Nixon's resignation.

Dole, who will be up for reelection next year, said he doesn't feel scandals in Washington will hurt his chances or those of other GOP office-seekers. "I see no reason to fault the Republican Party just because people with no experience in politics left a stain on the system," he said.

Litton, a freshman congressman, said Republicans probably will be putting more pressure on the President to resign than will Democrats. If the President does leave office before his term expires, he said, it would be by resignation rather than impeachment and "I wouldn't be surprised to see that happen in the next 12 months."

McNamara was asked about a law allowing officers to shoot fleeing felons.

"Some people think the police department is shooting too many people. Others think they're not shooting enough," he said. The audience laughed. "It is not the policeman's function to punish. His function is to apprehend and to bring individuals to the judicial system."

County uncertain of fee offices

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — An aide to supervisor Lawrence K. Roos of St. Louis County has indicated the county would not want to accept responsibility for the operation of Missouri Revenue Department fee offices as proposed by Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

The comment by Roos aide Robert Baer came over the weekend in response to a letter from Revenue Department chief James Spradling asking county collectors for their opinions on the Bond proposal.

Under the formula drawn up by the state, Baer said the county would set up eight offices and hire 57 employes compared to the 17 offices with 100 employes currently operated by the state.

County officials, he said, have expressed uncertainty that only eight offices would be sufficient to serve county residents.

During his gubernatorial campaign, Bond had promised to eliminate the fee offices under the state because he claimed they were "political plums."

Spradling's office has estimated the county could receive $430,000 yearly by operating the fee offices and collecting the 40-cent fee paid by residents for license plates and other services.

Boycott could result in more fuel problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans may be forced to drive their automobiles slower, and some could find themselves shivering in the dark because of the fuel shortage, federal officials say.

In a magazine interview published Sunday, White House energy chief John A. Love held out the possibility that residents in some parts of the country could find themselves short of electricity this winter.

"If the Arab boycott continues for an extended period, and the American people do not take steps to conserve energy, then additional government action will be necessary or we will, in fact, have blackouts or brownouts," Love told U.S. News & World Report.

Love said the areas of greatest concern were the East Coast, particularly New York City and New England, and the upper Midwest.

Speaking at a truckers convention in Miami Beach, Federal Highways Administrator Norbert Tiemann said his agency was considering asking that vehicle speed limits on federal roads be reduced as a fuel-conservation step.

U.S. officials, however, have stopped well short of calling for the nation to follow the example of the Netherlands, where a ban on Sunday driving has taken effect because of an oil embargo imposed on the Dutch by eight Arab countries. The United States also is on the Arabs' embargo list.

Temperature, precipitation expected near normal

By LEONARD F. HAND
Agricultural Meteorologist

PORTAGEVILLE — Both temperature average and total precipitation are expected to fall within near normal categories through the Bootheel region for the month of November.

High pressure systems reaching the mid and lower Mississippi Valley will deliver air from polar rather than tropical source regions for the most part: maritime polar crossing the western mountain ranges and continental polar moving southward out of the Canadian plains.

Little opportunity for extensive southerly flow from the Gulf region appears likely, although some modifying influence from that source may be felt at times.

The Gulf moisture source may offer sufficient input to touch off showers with the cold frontal passages. This will be needed to build totals of nearly four inches of moisture normal in the Bootheel this month.

The most favorable distribution would be one which delayed delivery of the bulk of wet weather until late in the period. Daily extended outlooks will be valuable guides to trends during these next few critical weeks.

Signs of the first killing freeze of the season are among the more sought after prospects. Climatology places the normal date of earliest moderate freeze for the Bootheel about the 30th of October across the northern edge and Nov. 20 in the southern fringes. That means a shelter temperature range of 24 to 28 degrees. Until north winds deliver a sufficiently chilling sample of air this far south, however, that event will not be observed.

Meantime, farmers report difficulty in combining soybeans because stalks still retain excessive moisture. Many fields still show leaves on plants even though grain moisture has dropped to 13 per cent or lower. Some of this is thought to be varietal, and much is due to the predominantly late plantings and maturity this season.

Cotton, too, is well leafed, either with new growth, because of poor results with defoliants, or combinations of both. Temperatures have held up better than expected in terms of weekly averages at or well above normal most of the month.

At this point in the season little moisture is required by the plants and an adequate supply has been sustained even by light rainfall this month.

Stalling of excessive rains well to the west early in the month spared Bootheel farmers a serious and costly delay in harvest schedules. The second half of the month was characterized by little or no moisture input by rains until showers last weekend brought the first interruption in a two-week session of sunny and dry days.

Most rains were light, less than a half inch, with a few spots near an inch indicated. At this stage of the season, it doesn't take much rain to bring the harvest to a temporary halt. Evaporation progresses at a slow pace at best, and much of the rain that falls remains within easy access to the surface as a source for dew and ground fog.

Recent rains, though generally light, were beneficial on land sown to wheat that was too dry for germination. End of season field work is progressing well with soils workable and memories spurring farmers to take advantage of it.

Rainfall totals for Bootheel stations Oct. 1 through 30 are: Portageville, 1.56 inches; Sikeston, 2.34; Malden, 0.85; Kennett, 0.95; Poplar Bluff, 1.86; Charleston, 1.32; and East Prairie, 1.67 inches.

Normal November precipitation for the bootheel as a whole is 3.89 inches.

Normals for individual cities are:

Cape Girardeau, 3.61; Dexter, 3.87; Morehouse, 4.06; Parma, 4.16; Sikeston, 4.18; Caruthersville, 3.87; Doniphan, 3.81; New Madrid, 4.28; and Poplar Bluff, 3.78.

Short term averages for other cities:

Advance, 3.42; Bloomfield, 4.10; Clearwater Dam, 3.62; Malden, 3.60; Puxico, 4.17; Wappapello Dam, 3.85; Bernie, 4.63; Charleston, 4.46; Kennett, 4.31; Portageville, 4.27; and Qulin, 4.46.

Long term records show that for those Novembers with near normal precipitation, totals averaged 3.00 inches at Poplar Bluff, 2.81 inches at Sikeston and 3.16 inches at Caruthersville. Under those conditions, totals have ranged from 2.22 to 4.00 inches at Poplar Bluff, from 2.35 to 3.95 at Sikeston and from 2.25 to 3.85 inches at Caruthersville.

Highlights and sidelights

Legislature to consider criminal code revision

JEFFERSON CITY — A proposal to totally revise the Missouri Criminal Code has received its first legislative airing.

Edward H. Hunvald, Jr., executive director of the Committee to Draft a Modern Criminal Code, outlined the proposed revisions at a joint meeting of House and Senate committees on last Tuesday in Jefferson City.

Hunvald, a professor at the University of Missouri-Columbia Law School, told the legislators that while the new criminal code may not be perfect, it is "a vast improvement over the present law." Its purpose, he said, was to eliminate obsolete and unconstitutional laws, make the language of the statutes more understandable, and make penalties uniform and appropriate to crimes.

Sen. Ike Skelton (D-Lexington), chairman of the Senate committee, said the proposal would bring the state's criminal laws "out of the dark ages".

"This proposed revision of Missouri's criminal code," he said, "is one of the greatest challenges the Missouri legislature has had in modern times."

Missouri's criminal statutes were last revised in 1835, 14 years after the state was founded.

The hearing was the first of several on the new code. "Hopefully, we will be able to work on corrections or additions in time to put it in bill form by the opening of the session," Skelton said.

Work on the new criminal code was begun four years ago when the Committee to Draft a Modern Criminal Code was appointed consisting of 14 lawyers, judges and legislators. Attorney General John C. Danforth, the Lieutenant Governor, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the Director of theDepartment of Corrections, the Superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, and the president of the Prosecuting Attorneys Association each appointed two members.

After the resignation of some of the original members, the committee, in 1971, selected an additional 14 members. The committee totals 24 members at the present time.

Supreme court Commissioner Norwin D. Houser has served as chairman of the committee since its inception.

Hunvald and three other law professors from the University of Missouri-Columbia and St. Louis University law schools did the original research and rewrites.

The committee studied the criminal codes of 15 other states, the modern penal code of the American Law Institute, and a newly drafted federal penal code in preparing the proposed code for Missouri.

In the new code, the number of sections has been reduced from the existing 491 to 238. This reduction, according to Houser, has the effect of "streamlining the criminal law without omitting any necessary protections afforded society".

The existing 35 sections on gambling, for example, have been reduced to 12, and obsolete statutes such as the one that makes it a misdemeanor for the driver of a hack or stagecoach to be intoxicated to such a degree as to endanger the safety of passengers have been eliminated.

Many sections outlawed by recent Supreme Court decisions also have been eliminated or rewritten.

As part of its effort to clarify the language of the statutes, the committee reduced the definitions of the criminal intent of the accused to four categories. Existing laws make an act criminal if it is done corruptly, falsely, feloniously, fraudulently, maliciously, on purpose and of malice aforethought, cruelly, contemptuously, wrongfully and so on. "These ill- defined adverbs have required literally dozens of appeals to judicially determine their meaning," Houser said. "All this needless grinding of the judicial machinery will stop if our code is adopted."

Under the new code, for any act to result in criminal punishment it must be done either with purpose, knowledge, recklessness or criminal negligence.

"This will cut down on the number of appeals," Houser said, "and will provide the policeman on the beat with a statute he can read and understand without all the legal gobbledegook. It also will provide the defense lawyer with a plain statement on the law on the basis of which he can with confidence advise his client, and will provide the prosecuting attorenys, courts and juries with a rule and standard of conduct that is clearly stated, understandable, and which has sense and meaning."

The new code also is aimd at eliminating discrepancies that exist in sentencing under the present laws. At the presen. time, the maximum sentence for a person convicted of chicken stealing is greater than that for someone who has been convicted of assault with intent to kill.

The new code would separate felonies into four classes and misdemeanors into three classes with each category carrying its own range of punishment. A Class A felony authorizes the imposition of imprisonment for a term of from 10 to 30 years, or life. A Class D felony would carry a prison term of up to five years.

The new code also would take the responsibility for sentencing out of the hands of the jury and give the power to the trial judge. Proponents of this proposal, which Skelton called "probably one of the most controversial points in the whole bill," argue that the judge is in a better position to sentence that better fits the case.

The section on imprisonment includes a provision aimed at the rehabilitation of those convicted. Sentences automatically would be reviewed to insure uniformity around the state, and the last one- third of an inmate's sentence would be served outside the prison, but under supervision.

The committee felt this provision would reduce recidivism by writing provisions for parole and rehabilitation into the law, rather than having inmates serve their "flat time" and go back into society without supervision.

Sections on abortion, wire-tapping and the death penalty were drafted by the committee, but not made a part of the new code. These controversial sections were included in an appendix so they could be considered separately by the legislators.

Schools vote higher levy

A survey completed by the State Department of Education -- with 84 percent of the schools responding -- shows that of the 89 school districts holding operating levy elections last April, 65 voted a higher levy. The increases averaged 27 cents per $100 valuation.

When you go out for food and bring it home, you're not giving the family much of a treat. Someone still has to set the table and serve. Then there's that mess to contend with afterwards. Here's a better way. Bring the family into our new Sambo's Restaurant. Have a relaxed, sit-down meal. Let us do the work. And instead of just one or two kinds of food to choose from, Sambo's has over 100 items – for breakfast, lunch, dinner and snacks. It's all made to order, 24 hours a day. So remember: next time, don't take out. Eat out...at our new Sambo's.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am writing you today concerning my mother who is 82 years old. Until recently she was in perfect health. Now she has developed heart trouble, diabetes and high blood pressure. The last physical examination revealed that she now has an enlarged spleen and was anemic. Iron pills were prescribed for this.

What is the spleen? The doctor did not prescribe medicine for this condition, nor did he recommend surgery. He said that the enlarged spleen was not dangerous and recommended that she watch her diet. How serious is this condition?

Dear Reader — The spleen is a very small organ that lies just under the diaphragm at the edge of the ribs on the left side. It's just above the left kidney. Normally it's a small organ, less than half the size of your hand. It's like a large lymph gland. Many of the old blood cells are destroyed within the spleen. All of it's functions are not clear. It may enlarge when a person has a fever or if there is heart failure which may be the situation with your mother. It's importance depends entirely on what's causing it. It can be a factor in some types of anemia and low white blood cell counts.

I presume that the type and degree of anemia that your mother has was such that your doctor felt satisfied that it was unrelated to the enlargement of the spleen. He may also have felt that the enlargement of the spleen was minimal and more likely related to her heart problems. There isn't any way I can give you a definite answer. The only thing you can do is to depend on the doctor's judgment. After all he knows how big the spleen is and how severe the anemia is as well as the rest of the problem, including the severity of the heart disease.

Dear Dr. Lamb — What is a spot on the lung? What causes it? Is it dangerous? We have heard so much about it recently via John Wayne and Johnny Bench on television. One said cancer, the other said it had to be analyzed to determine what caused it. Is it necessary to have an operation if it is determined that there is a spot on the lung?

Dear Reader — A spot on the lung is just a spot on the lung until a better diagnosis is made. Sometimes a spot on the lung represents an old infection of one of the fungus diseases of the lung such as histoplasmosis or coccidioidomycosis. These fungus diseases may leave a spot on the lung after the inflammation is over and the spot may have no important significance. On the other hand, a spot on the lungs may well be cancer. There are differences in the X ray characteristics between some spots that enable a doctor to have a pretty good idea if they are cancer or not, but if there's any question the only way the problem can be solved is by surgical removal of the area and examination. Certainly if a spot is found and there's any question about it, the quicker surgery is achieved the better likelihood of a successful outcome.

Lung cancer is very common in American men. Ninety per cent of all men who have lung cancer smoke cigarettes. It is probably an example of a preventable disease. It may sound strange to say that you can prevent cancer but there are a number of cancers which can be prevented and the large number of lung cancers appears to be a good example. Merely by avoiding smoking cigarettes the incidence of lung cancer can be sharply reduced.

Flu shots urged

Influenza can be devastating for people who already have long- term diseases, especially chronic heart or lung diseases.

There is no agreement about recommending flu vaccination for healthy people. But authorities do agree that older people in general and people with chronic heart or lung disease should receive flu shots and annual boosters. The Public Health Service also recommends the shots for people who have severe diabetes and chronic kidney disease.

Unfortunately, many patients who need flu shots and boosters do not get them. Yet many of these people have direct contact with medical institutions, chest clinics, and emphysema clubs. This year, lung associations across the country are cooperating with public health departments to be sure that people who need flu shots get them.

The flu, which is caused by different types of influenza viruses, can take a considerable toll on a healthy person. People with chronic illness have an even harder time.

Today in U.S. History

On this date in 1956, Britain and France started landing military forces in Egypt to support Israel in fighting with the Egyptians.

In 1605, a British conspirator, Guy Fawkes, was seized as he was about to blow up the House of Lords in London.

In 1872, Susan B. Anthony voted for Ulysses S. Grant for President. Women did not have the vote, and she was fined $100 for illegal voting.

In 1912, Woodrow Wilson was elected president.

In 1930, American novelist Sinclair Lewis was awarded the Nobel Prize.

In 1940, Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected to an unprecedented third term as president.

In 1946, a new career in politics began as John F. Kennedy was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives.
